GOVERNMENT POLICY TO BE UNCHANGED

M. DAHL, ONE OF PIONEERS OF CITY, DIES

Emigrated to America at Age of 15, Succeeded in Business and Won Honors

HERE SINCE 1880

Active in City Affairs, Was Twice Elected Secretary of State of North Dakota

C. M. Dahl, 68 years old, former Secretary of State of North Dakota, died at his home, 615 Fifth street, at 12 o'clock this morning after a long illness, which had its inception in stomach trouble. Mr. Dahl had been in serious condition for several days.

Born August 21, 1855, at Hedemarken, Norway, Mr. Dahl received his early education in the schools of Norway and was confirmed in the Norwegian Lutheran church. He came to America with a brother at the age of 16 years and settled at LaCrosse, Wis. There Mr. Dahl completed his education, and then entered on his successful business career. He first was employed at Lansing in a department store and remained there several years.

In 1880, a few years after the Northern Pacific railroad had completed its lines across North Dakota and the new country was being opened up, Mr. Dahl cast his lot with the hardy pioneers who made the state. He settled in Bismarck a year after coming to the state, and has been a resident continuously since that time.

Mr. Dahl opened a men's clothing store the first year of his residence here, and has continued the business, which occupies large quarters on Main street, for 42 years. During his residence in Bismarck Mr. Dahl was active in civic, fraternal and lodge affairs. He helped to organize the first Company A of Bismarck, which won honors in two wars. He was a charter member of the Knights of Pythias lodge, served as a member of the city council of Bismarck before the city adopted the commission form of government. He was twice elected to the office of Secretary of State of North Dakota, serving from 1892 to 1896, and he possessed a remarkable acquaintance throughout the state at that time.

Mr. Dahl was married at Sparta, Wis. September 2, 1883, to Helen E. Hanchett of Sparta, who, with two daughters survives him.

Funeral services will be held from the family residence Monday afternoon at 2:30 p. m.

PERSONNEL AT LUCAS STORE IS UNCHANGED

Improvements Agreed Upon Earlier in Year Will Be Carried Out

As many readers are interested in the death of Mr. Lucas and wondering how the affairs of the store will be conducted, it is announced that the personnel of the store, as the organization is an exceptionally capable one fully able to carry on the business in every respect. In fact, Mr. Kohler expressed himself as well satisfied with the business and the outlook for the future.

At a Directors' meeting held Thursday, the only change made was that Mr. A. O. Schimansky was made a director. Mr. Schimansky needs no introduction to the people of Bismarck, having resided here previously to engaging in the banking business at Solsen, North Dakota. Mr. Schimansky has also been appointed administrator of the A. W. Lucas estate and will take an active part in the affairs of the company.

Mr. Kohler states that the business will not alone be carried on as before, but some improvements will be made for the betterment of the business agreed upon early in the year would be completed as planned. The progress made by the store in the past few years, Mr. Kohler says, clearly shows the growth and future possibilities of Bismarck as a commercial center.

IS TRANSFERRED
Capt. Matthew W. Murphy of Fargo, Judge-Advocate in the North Dakota National Guard, has been transferred to the Infantry and will be Adjutant to Col. David S. Ritchie, commander of the guard in North Dakota.

REQUESTS FOR 1924 HIGHWAY WORK GROWING

Already Call For More Than $2,000,000 of State-Federal Aid Work in N. D.

HIGHWAY BODY MEETS

No Refund on Automobile Licenses, It Is Decided by The Commissioners

Requests made for state-federal highway work in 1924 already have far exceeded expectations, W. G. Black, chief engineer of the highway commission said today. Requests for road work now include 513 miles of road grading and 146 miles of gravel surfacing, which would entail an expenditure of over $2,000,000, and would be far beyond the amount of work proposed up to this time of year in any preceding year.

Among the activities of the highway commission in the near future will be the publication of a new and complete road map showing all of the state's highways, the placing of signs on all important state highways which will be designated by number and the issuance of a bulletin once a month telling of road activities in the state.

It has been found necessary to undertake the marking of trails in the state because of the inaccurate and incomplete marking which has been done by many organizations, it was stated by the chief engineer. The highway commission, in meeting here, passed a resolution providing that money might be advanced from the state fund to pay contractors money due from the federal government for road work, the state fund to be reimbursed when federal funds are available. This action was taken, it was explained, because it often takes contractors two to three months to get vouchers through government sources and often causes them to borrow money. They accordingly allow for the delay and expense by increasing their bids, it was added.

A new rule with respect to the Motor Vehicle Department also was made. There will be no refund on motor vehicle licenses in the future. Heretofore it has been the practice, when the owner of an automobile moved to another state or his car passed out of existence, to make a refund on the license. The highway commission it was said, feels that the North Dakota license is now as small as compared with other states that no refund should be made.

Bids for automobile tags for 1924 were received from four firms and the contract let to the Western Display and Manufacturing Company of St. Paul, at 11 1/4 cents per sign, the low bid. The total cost is estimated at $13,100.

Requests from Grand Forks, Burke and Walsh counties for state aid in construction of federal-state highways to cost a total of $65,000 were approved.

BODY TO LIE IN STATE IN WASHINGTON

Private Funeral Services May Be Held Next Wednesday Before Removal

FUNERAL AT MARION, O.

Burial of President Will Take Place on Friday of Next Week, It Is Planned

Washington, Aug. 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—As the Harding funeral train moved eastward today President Coolidge devoted his attention to plans for fitting services here and prepared to carry on with the policies of the late chief executive.

Accompanied by his wife and several close friends Mr. Coolidge arrived in Washington late last night from Plymouth, Vt., where shortly before dawn yesterday he took the presidential oath of office in his father's modest home. Going to the hotel in which he and Mrs. Coolidge will occupy a suite until they begin their residence in the White House the new President went into conference with Secretary Hughes, Postmaster-General New and Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Republican whip. Later it was announced that detailed funeral plans were being prepared.

Details, subject to Mrs. Harding's approval, call for removal of the body on its arrival here Tuesday afternoon to the White House. There it will remain until Wednesday morning in the majestic West Room where private services may be held just before the body is taken to the capitol rotunda for services at 10 o'clock.

Will Lie in State
Detachments of soldiers, sailors and marines will serve as an escort from the executive mansion to the capitol.

After the services in the rotunda the body of the dead President will lie in state and the public will be permitted to file past the casket until 6 p. m. Wednesday. At that hour the body will be removed to the train which, leaving at 7 p. m., will carry it to Marion, Ohio, for burial, probably Friday.

Mr. Coolidge expects to accompany the funeral party to Marion. Until his return to Washington he is not expected to devote much attention to matters other than those pertaining to the funeral and burial of his predecessor in office.

A great mass of mail having accumulated during his absence from Washington, the new President devoted some time today to disposing of pressing correspondence, but had little of general importance on his program today.

To Carry Out Policies
Announcing himself that he would dedicate himself to carrying out Mr. Harding's administration policies he will, his friends and advisers believe, make no changes in the governmental machinery, at least for the present. Mr. Coolidge is expected to declare the day of Mr. Harding's funeral a day of mourning throughout the United States. Such a proclamation would result in closing all government offices throughout the country.

Flags over all government buildings today continued to fly at half-mast. At day-break army posts throughout the country began the firing of an all-day salute, beginning with 13 guns. At half-hour intervals single shots were to be fired until sundown, and there will be a final salute of 48 guns. Orders also have been issued for suitable salutes by the navy.

Messages of condolence to Mrs. Harding continued to pour into the White House where three telegraph operators were kept busy receiving them. With the return of Mr. Harding only three days off efforts are being made to put the executive mansion, which had been undergoing renovation, in readiness. Workmen tolled throughout the night to complete extensive repairs which were begun after Mr. Harding left Washington on his Alaskan trip.

For the present Mr. Coolidge has indicated he will not make use of the executive offices but will transact business in an office set aside for him in his hotel and in the Vice-President's suite in the capitol. As for occupying the White House as a residence both Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge have expressed themselves as preferring to remain in the hotel suite which has been their home since March, 1921, until Mrs. Harding finds it convenient for them to take over the executive mansion. They have notified her of this desire.

COOLIDGE TO KEEP HARDING APPOINTEES

President Announces No Change in Personnel of Administration for Present

KEEPS POLICY ALSO

In General Will Try to Maintain Service to The Country

Washington, Aug. 4.—President Coolidge let it be known that the present personnel of the Harding administration would continue in office indefinitely and that he could see no reason for present changes or the interruption of any negotiations now being carried on with foreign governments.

At his first conference with newspaper men, however, the President declined to discuss administration policies. He would not comment on possibilities of an extra session of congress.

One of the first things President Coolidge was to prepare was a proclamation on Mr. Harding's death, calling for a national day of mourning on the day of the funeral. It will be issued later in the day.

ON DUTY EARLY
Washington, Aug. 4.—Calvin Coolidge began his administration as the 30th President today by designating Friday, the funeral day of President Harding, as a day of nation-wide mourning.

He also announced that the personnel of the federal government as ordered by him by his predecessor would remain unchanged for the present and that credentials of American representatives who are negotiating for armament between the United States of America and Turkey at the name of President Harding would be renewed at once.

In his conference with newspaper men the chief executive gave assurance that he also would maintain (Continued on Page 2)

C. W. MORSE AND SONS FREED OF FRAUDCHARGES

Jury in Washington Finds Them Not Guilty of War Fraud Conduct

Washington, Aug. 4.—Chas. W. Morse, New York shipbuilder, his three sons, and four others were acquitted here today by a jury of charges of conspiracy to defraud the U. S. in connection with wartime ship construction and operation contracts.

Besides Chas. W. Morse the defendants were Erwin A. Morse, Benjamin Morse, Harry F. Morse, M. H. Campbell of New York, treasurer of the U. S. Steamship Co.; Robt. Wright of New York, president of the U. S. transport company; Rupert Much of Augusta, Maine; assistant treasurer of the Virginia Shipbuilding corporation and Philip Rheinhart, formerly emergency fleet corporation auditor, of the Virginia Shipbuilding plant at Alexandria.

The Morse case was the first of the so-called war fraud criminal cases to be presented to a jury. Two indictments were returned containing two counts each and setting forth many overt acts charged with several defendants in the conduct between several Morse companies and the Emergency Fleet Corporation during and immediately after the war.

PRINCE GOES TO HOSPITAL

Son of English King Injured Trying to Subdue Horse

London, Aug. 4.—Prince Henry, third son of King George is in the hospital at Aldershot with a fractured ankle. He was leading his troops of the 10th Hussars at jumping practice Wednesday when he saw a recruit unable to manage a restive horse. The Prince dismounted, took the recruit's place, and had nearly subdued the animal when it threw and rolled upon him.

This is the latest photograph of President Coolidge. He was at the old Coolidge farm at Plymouth, Vt., with Mrs. Coolidge and Calvin, Jr. Bulletins of President Harding's condition were sent to him over the only telephone in Plymouth.

MERCURY IS CLOSE TO 32

Just Misses Freezing Point at Minot, Official Report Shows

Freezing weather almost came to North Dakota last night. The mercury fell to 33 above at Minot last night, according to the weather bureau report. It was but 34 above at Pembina, Bottineau, and other temperatures ranged up to the highest for the night in Bismarck, where it was 53 above.

Even though the weather report shows Bismarck the warmest place in the state last night the chilly breezes sent many to cover.

Calgary, Canada, reported the lowest of the night for other portions of the Northwest, it being 44 above there.

The cool breezes accomplished one thing—it is reported that they curbed the activities of the mosquitoes in the bottoms without damage to potato crops.

The local forecast is for continued cool tonight and rising temperature Sunday.

The Weather

For Bismarck and vicinity Generally fair tonight and Sunday. Continued cool tonight. Rising temperature Sunday.

For North Dakota Generally fair tonight and Sunday. Continued cool tonight. Rising temperature Sunday.

General Weather Conditions
The weather continued cool over the northern states and frost was reported at Helena, Montana this morning. Light precipitation occurred at scattered places in the Mississippi Valley, in the Dakotas and at scattered places in the eastern Rocky Mountain States.

Road Conditions

The roads throughout the State are mostly in good to excellent condition.

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE STAND WITH BARED HEADS AS FUNERAL TRAIN PASSES THROUGH CITIES

Mrs. Harding Continues to Show Great Courage and Obtain Some Rest on the Journey to Washington—Old, Young, Rich and Poor Join in Silent Mark of Respect to Dead President in California and Nevada Cities—Soldiers Guard Body Day and Night

Aboard the Harding Funeral Train, Roseville, Calif., Aug. 4.—(By the A. P.)—The sorrow in the hearts of the American people over the death of their leader was exemplified today by silent groups along the railroad side as the special train bearing the body of W. G. Harding traversed California and Nevada.

With bared heads they stood, sometimes in groups of hundreds, sometimes only a score and sometimes singly. There was none too poor, too rich, none too mighty or none too humble to pay their mark of respect to the memory of President Harding. They were conscious of showing their sorrow, but to those on the funeral train they typified the American people as a whole. It was the same from early morning all through the day. It had been the same since the train left San Francisco at 7:15 o'clock last evening. It will be the same throughout the 3,000 miles of journey to Washington and after that the trip to Marion, Ohio. The nation mourned as the saddest transcontinental journey of history progressed.

FIRST ACT OF PRESIDENT IS PROCLAMATION

President Coolidge Calls For a Day of Mourning Friday, August 10

ANNOUNCES DEATH

Washington, Aug. 4.—The first official act of President Coolidge as the new executive of the nation was his signature today to a proclamation announcing the death of President Harding and calling upon the country to observe Friday, August 10, as a day of mourning and prayer. On that day Mr. Harding's body is to be buried at Marion, Ohio. The proclamation was signed at 11:18 a. m. It was brought to the President's hotel suite by J. Butler Wright, third assistant secretary of state, and returned to the state department for the signature of Secretary Hughes.

N. D. DELEGATES AT CONVENTION FOR COOLIDGE

Was Considered Presidential Timber by Them, Says Miss Minnie Nielson

At least one member of the North Dakota delegation to the Republican National convention at Chicago in 1920 is glad she voted for Calvin Coolidge for the Vice-Presidential nomination.

"I had great respect for Mr. Coolidge," said Miss Minnie Nielson, state superintendent and one of the state's 10 delegates to the convention. "Our delegation was instructed by Hiram Johnson and we voted for him until it was hopeless. We cast our first free ballot for Calvin Coolidge, or at least part of us, and then voted for Mr. Harding on the final ballot. We voted for Mr. Coolidge for Vice-President."

"I remember that when the North Dakota delegation was returning on the train we remarked that we believed we had voted for a man for Vice-President who was presidential timber."

Official North Dakota will pay its respect to the memory of President Harding at the time of the funeral through executive proclamation to be issued by Governor Nestos. He will order the capitol closed and proclaim a day of mourning, the proclamation to be issued when definite arrangements for the funeral have been completed, probably on Saturday.

The capitol will, of course, the Governor said, be closed at the time of funeral.

ORDERS BOY SCOUTS OUT

Dresseldorf, Aug. 4.—Gen. Degoutte of the forces of occupation has ordered all Boy Scouts organizations in the Rhineland dissolved. He takes the ground that they endanger the security of the occupying forces.

Gen. Kontos Convalescing.
George Kontos, who has been ill for sometime with a stomach trouble and a light attack of appendicitis is convalescing rapidly and will soon be back at the Olympics.

Reads Their Sorrow
Mingled with their sorrow, the silent, bared-headed people felt the utmost sympathy for the traveler calm in the last car of the train. The hurriedly passing train gave them no opportunity to express their sympathies in words, but Mrs. Harding read it in their faces. It gave her strength in this hour of sorrow but it also was a constant reminder, even though she heeded, of her great loss. Mrs. Harding continued to bear up well under the strain and was still as determined as she was on the evening of the President's death that she couldn't break down. She retired early last night temporarily exhausted by the ordeal of the day.

Body Guarded
While she sought sleep the silent groups watched the passing of the train. When San Francisco had paid its last respects other towns and cities along the route took up the task. Burlingame, San Mateo, Redwood City, Tracy, Stockton, Niles and others continued the tribute which began at the Golden Gate. The coming of darkness seemed to make no difference and thousands stood along the track at Stockton as the train crept slowly through the city. All was quiet during the night. There was only the clicking of the car wheels as the train sped on. The only movement was the hourly change in the guard of honor beside the flag-draped coffin in the last car. Each hour two soldiers, a sailor and a marine made their way quietly through the train to the last car. Soon afterwards the guard made its way back.

STOPS AT SPARKS
On Board Funeral Train at Sparks, Nev., Aug. 4.—The special train carrying to Washington the body of President Harding paused here for a few moments this morning before speeding on its journey. Here as every station passed during the night were silent men, women and children all with heads bared and many with bowed heads. There were little boys and girls, hardly out of school, but they showed the same reverence as the same respect at their elders.

MRS. HARDING RESTS WELL
On Board the Funeral Train at Sparks, Nevada, Aug. 4.—Mrs. Harding rested last night as well as could be expected. The widow of the late President retired early to her state room and when the train reached here about 8 o'clock this morning, the day was still clear. There has been no occasion to call anyone during the night.

Services Held
San Francisco, Aug. 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—Mrs. Florence Harding, widow of the late president, standing between Mr. and Mrs. Geo. B. Christian, Jr., as the Rev. James S. West read the prayer over her late husband's body, late yesterday nodded her head slightly as the pastor raised his hand and said:

"God is our refuge and strength and as the minister ended his prayer Mrs. Harding said: 'Amen.'"

The widow stood and watched the half hundred persons as they filed out, waiting for the room to clear in order that she might have a few minutes alone with her dead before the body was taken to the train for transportation to the national capitol.

The body of the dead president reposed in a drab brown steel coffin, lined with white silk. The only inscription, engraved on a silver plate, was "Warren G. Harding."

The coffin was banked with flowers and floral tributes from citizens and consuls general of many nations filled the sitting room of the presidential suite where the simple religious ceremony was conducted.

The setting sun poured thru the lower portion of the windows and flooded the flower-bower with sunlight, which gave the room the appearance of an outdoor flower garden.

PERSONNEL AT LUCAS STORE IS UNCHANGED

Improvements Agreed Upon Earlier in Year Will Be Carried Out

As many readers are interested in the big store and wondering how the death of Mr. Lucas would affect the affairs and future policies of the firm, a representative of the Tribune secured an interview with Mr. C. Jury in Washington Finds Them Not Guilty of War Fraud Conduct

Washington, Aug. 4.—Chas. W. Morse, New York shipbuilder, his three sons, and four others were acquitted here today by a jury of charges of conspiracy to defraud the U. S. in connection with wartime ship construction and operation contracts.

Besides Chas. W. Morse the defendants were Erwin A. Morse, Benjamin Morse, Harry F. Morse, M. H. Campbell of New York, treasurer of the U. S. Steamship Co.; Robt. Wright of New York, president of the U. S. transport company; Rupert Much of Augusta, Maine; assistant treasurer of the Virginia Shipbuilding corporation and Philip Rheinhardt, formerly emergency fleet corporation auditor, of the Virginia Shipbuilding plant at Alexandria.

The Morse case was the first of the so-called war fraud criminal cases to be reported to a jury. Two indictments were returned containing two counts each and setting forth many overt acts charged with several defendants in the conduct between several Morse companies and the Emergency Fleet Corporation during and immediately after the war.

PRINCE GOES TO HOSPITAL

Son of English King Injured Trying to Subdue Horse

London, Aug. 4.—Prince Henry, third son of King George is in the hospital at Aldershot with a fractured ankle. He was leading his troops of the 10th Hussars at jumping practice Wednesday when he saw a recruit unable to manage a restive horse. The Prince dismounted, took the recruit's place, and had nearly subdued the animal when it threw and rolled upon him.

This is the latest photograph of President Coolidge. He was at the old Coolidge farm at Plymouth, Vt., with Mrs. Coolidge and Calvin, Jr. Bulletins of President Harding's condition were sent to him over the only telephone in Plymouth.

BEFORE HARDING SURRENDERED

This photograph, taken by an NEA photographer at Seattle, shows the president landing from the Transport Henderson after his trip to Alaska. At this time he was suffering from ptomaine poisoning, but was valiantly striving to keep up with his itinerary.

MERCURY IS CLOSE TO 32

Just Misses Freezing Point at Minot, Official Report Shows

Freezing weather, almost came to North Dakota last night. The mercury fell to 33 above at Minot last night, according to the weather bureau report. It was but 34 above at Pembina, Bottineau, and other temperatures ranged up to the highest for the night in Bismarck, where it was 53 above.

Even though the weather report shows Bismarck the warmest place in the state last night the chilly breezes sent many to cover.

Calgary, Canada, reported the lowest of the night for other portions of the Northwest, it being 44 above there.

The cool breezes accomplished one thing—it is reported that they curbed the activities of the mosquitoes in the bottoms without damage to potato crops.

The local forecast is for continued cool tonight and rising temperature Sunday.

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE STAND WITH BARED HEADS AS FUNERAL TRAIN PASSES THROUGH CITIES

Mrs. Harding Continues to Show Great Courage and Obtains Some Rest on the Journey to Washington—Old, Young, Rich and Poor Join in Silent Mark of Respect to Dead President in California and Nevada Cities—Soldiers Guard Body Day and Night

Aboard the Harding Funeral Train, Roseville, Calif., Aug. 4.—(By the A. P.)—The sorrow in the hearts of the American people over the death of their leader was exemplified today by silent groups along the railroad side as the special train bearing the body of W. G. Harding traversed California and Nevada.

With bared heads they stood, sometimes in groups of hundreds, sometimes only a score and sometimes singly. There was none too poor, too rich, none too mighty or none too humble to pay their mark of respect to the memory of President Harding. They were conscious only of showing their sorrow, but to those on the funeral train they typified the American people as a whole. It was the same from early morning all through the day. It had been the same since the train left San Francisco at 7:15 o'clock last evening. It will be the same throughout the 3,000 miles of journey to Washington and after that the trip to Marion, Ohio. The nation mourned as the saddest transcontinental journey of history progressed.

Reads Their Sorrow
Mingled with their sorrow, the silent, bareheaded people felt the utmost sympathy for the bravely calm woman who rides with her dead in the last car of the train. The hurriedly passing train gave them no opportunity to express their sympathy in words, but Mrs. Harding read it in their faces. It gave her strength in this hour of sorrow but it also was a constant reminder, even though she heeded, of her great loss. Mrs. Harding continued to bear up well under the strain and was still as determined as she was on the evening of the President's death that she couldn't break down. She retired early last night temporarily exhausted by the ordeal of the day.

FIRST ACT OF PRESIDENT IS PROCLAMATION

President Coolidge Calls For a Day of Mourning Friday, August 10

ANNOUNCES DEATH

Washington, Aug. 4.—The first official act of President Coolidge as the new executive of the nation was his signature today to a proclamation announcing the death of President Harding and calling upon the country to observe Friday, August 10, as a day of mourning and prayer. On that day Mr. Harding's body is to be buried at Marion, Ohio. The proclamation was signed at 1:18 a. m. It was brought to the President's hotel suite by J. Butler Wright, third assistant secretary of state, and returned to the state department for the signature of Secretary Hughes.

N. D. DELEGATES AT CONVENTION FOR COOLIDGE

Was Considered Presidential Timber by Them, Says Miss Minnie Nielson

At least one member of the North Dakota delegation to the Republican National convention at Chicago in 1920 is glad she voted for Calvin Coolidge for the Vice-Presidential nomination.

"I had great respect for Mr. Coolidge," said Miss Minnie Nielson, state superintendent and one of the state's 10 delegates to the convention. "Our delegation was instructed for Hiram Johnson and we voted for him until it was hopeless. We cast our first free ballot for Calvin Coolidge, or at least part of us, and then voted for Mr. Harding on the final ballot. We voted for Mr. Coolidge for Vice-president."

"I remember that when the North Dakota delegation was returning on the train we remarked that we believed we had voted for a man for Vice-President who was presidential timber."

Official North Dakota will pay its respect to the memory of President Harding at the time of the funeral through executive proclamation to be issued by Governor Neatos. He will order the capitol closed and proclaim a day of mourning, the proclamation to be issued when definite arrangements for the funeral have been completed, probably on Saturday.

The capitol will, of course, the Governor said, be closed at the time of funeral.

DIRECTOR OF GLEE CLUB RANKS HIGH

Prof. C. C. Pinney Has Wonderful Career as Student and Teacher

COMING AUGUST 7

Claude Charles Pinney, Mus. B., director of the North-Western College Glee Club of North-Western College, Naperville, Ill., which will appear in a concert at the Auditorium August 7 as a benefit for the Juvenile Band has a wonderful history of musical training and achievement behind him.

Claude Charles Pinney, Mus. B., Director of the North-Western College Glee Club eminant teachers; for a number of years completing his elementary training he has had charge of choirs and played the pipe organ in many of the leading churches of the country.

Mr. Pinney is a graduate of the Buffalo State Normal school where he studied with the assistance of Mrs. Alice Whelpton McLeod, pianist. For five years he was a student at the Oberlin Conservatory of Music, studying piano, organ, history and theory of music, graduating with honor and receiving the degree of Bachelor of Music in 1916.

After graduation from Oberlin Mr. Pinney taught piano and organ and was organist and choirmaster at St. Paul's Episcopal church, Newark, Ohio. He served as professor of piano, organ and theory in Ohio University at Athens, and from there was called to the head of the piano department in Tarkio College conservatory, Tarkio, Mo. After two years there he was made director of the conservatory which position he held for five years preceding his coming to North-Western College. At Tarkio he was organist and choir director in the First Methodist church and later in the United Presbyterian church.

During these years he continued his study of music under such teachers as Franklin Cannon and Ernest Hutchinson of New York and Harold Henry of Chicago.

"Mr. Pinney is not only a musician of first class but also a successful and experienced teacher and administrator, as well as a man of strong personality and refinement," declare his musical associates who have known him intimately during the years of his musical career. At present Prof. Pinney has charge of the music department at North-Western school of music which he has built up in the short time that he has been there into a department ranking with the best of music departments.

It is under the direction of such a man as Professor Pinney that the Glee Club comes to Bismarck. The twelve members of the club are talented musicians with years of careful training behind them. During the many concerts which they have given they have won recognition.

This excellent concert which includes a wide variety of musical selections is being given for the entire city for the benefit of the boys and girls band—the funds to be used to pay for the larger instruments which the Association of Commerce has pledged to pay for. Seats for the concert are being sold at seventy-five cents for any place in the Auditorium.

Is Green No More

"My experience with your medicine has been wonderful. My stomach and liver trouble of five years standing took a new turn two years ago when I took on an olive green complexion. I spent $1200 with doctors and specialists only to prove that I was still as green as ever. A friend advised me to take Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, and I am green no more. My stomach and liver trouble has all disappeared." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

Good Business Says: "Diversity"!

No man-made law can give the one-crop farmer the same security and dependable income that diversified farming assures.

Good cows and chickens, feed crops, garden truck, and a variety of marketable products give you more pay days a year, improve your credit, and prevent complete ruin in case of the failure of an important crop.

The City National Bank considers it a privilege to help farmers around Bismarck put their operations on a sounder, more businesslike basis.

LOCAL OFFICER HEADS CORPS

Col. E. P. Quain Named President of N. D. Association

Dr. E. P. Quain of Bismarck, was elected president of the North Dakota Association of Reserve Officers, an organization formed at Fort Snelling, Minnesota, according to Lieut. Col. G. H. Buss and Capt. Finley Baker, who have returned from attending the 15-day reserve officers' camp. Dr. Quain, who is a colonel in the reserve corps, was unable to be at the camp, and did not know he was to be elected.

The organization was formed for the purpose of keeping in touch with the national association, to promote military welfare, keep the country prepared, look after the training of young men disseminate information and keep in touch with legislation. The purpose of the officers' reserve corps is to keep a constant supply of trained officers so that the country will not experience the difficulty of the World War.

Mr. Dominic of Wahpeton, was elected secretary of the association and Mr. Keller of Fargo, treasurer.

FARNUM IN GREAT FILM

Exciting Story Is Told in "Brass Commandments" At Capitol

Shades of Buffalo Bill! Colonel Cody, if he could but gaze at "Brass Commandments," would envy William Farnum his part in the Fox production, which begins a two day run at the Capitol tonight. The story was written by Charles Alden Seltzer, who is well known as an author of breezy Western tales. The film shows also with action, containing scenes of thrilling riding, clever shooting and a whirlwind fight that furnishes a strong dramatic climax. There is romance, too; not the sticky molasses kind, but red blooded, glowing, live romance.

Those who remember Tom Santschi's oft mentioned battle with Farnum in "The Spoilers" will find a more exciting combat in this offering. In addition to the star and Santschi, the cast includes Wanda Hawley and Claire Adams, as well as Al Fremont.

The entertainment value of the picture is best judged by the way in which the audience received it in this case their approval was marked. The tense moments of the film brought forth the same clenching of hands and hunching of shoulders in the audience that were enacted on the screen. The romance was delightful in its charm, and at the Santschi, the cast includes Wanda Hawley and Claire Adams, as well as Al Fremont.

PRAYER READ FOR PRESIDENT BY REV. WEST

Baptist Minister of San Francisco Also Prays for Calvin Coolidge

San Francisco, Aug. 4.—(By The Associated Press)—The Rev. James E. West, pastor of the First Baptist church of San Francisco, delivered the following prayer at the services for President Harding here last evening:

"Almighty God, Our Heavenly Father, Thou art the Supreme Ruler of the nation and the world, the loving Heavenly Father of all Thy children, almighty in Thy strength and infinite in Thy tenderness.

"We approach Thee with reverence and humility, and in this hour when our hearts are wrung with sorrow, the nation is bowed in grief, and the eyes and heart-sympathies of the world are turned toward this place.

The great and beloved chief magistrate of our nation has suddenly fallen at the moment when we most brightly hoped that our earnest prayers for his speedy and complete recovery were being graciously answered, when his great work, as it seemed to us, had only well begun. Our hearts are broken, we are sore stricken with the sense of loss to his family, loved ones, friends, the nation and the world.

"Our hope is in Thee, and Thee only. We humbly beseech Thee that Thy infinite grace and comfort may be bestowed upon us abundantly in this hour of our supreme need as individuals, and as a nation.

Thanks Expressed

"We thank Thee out of the depths of our hearts for the noble, Christian character, lofty principles, and notable service of him whom Thou has called from sacrificial service to rest eternal. We bless Thee for his unshrinking courage, his stalwart strength, his radiant kindness and gentleness, and for his self-forgetting devotion to the cause of justice, brotherhood and peace for the individual, the nation and the world, in the propagation of which he sacrificed his life, and as a martyr to which he is lovingly enshrined forever in the hearts of the grief-stricken but grateful people.

"We fondly hope and earnestly pray that what he wished and sought to accomplish by his life may now be accomplished by his death. Raise up others, we beseech Thee, who shall carry forward and complete the great work which he began.

"We beseech Thee to bless with wisdom, poise and strength, all those who were associated with him in the great affairs of the nation, and upon whom with his going there rests a burden of responsibility.

"We beseech Thee, especially, to bless him who by this providence is called to the chief magistracy of the republic.

"Let Thy tenderest benediction of comfort and sustaining grace be upon members of the stricken family, his aged father, his brother, and sisters, especially upon his faithful, devoted wife, and helpmate. Comfort her with the hope of eternal life and according to her need, be Thou her sufficiency day by day until that bright morning dawn when she shall see again the face of him whom she has loved long since and lost awhile.

"We make this petition for Thy rich blessing upon the nation and the world in the name of Him who is the resurrection and the life, Jesus Christ, Our Lord and Saviour."

Thousands of People Stand With Bared Heads as Funeral Passes

When Rev. West concluded his Bible text and bowed his head for prayer, Mrs. Christian stepped from the side of the room and stood on Mrs. Harding's right. Both Mr. and Mrs. Christian held the widow's arms throughout the entire ceremony.

Wears Deep Mourning

Mrs. Harding, dressed in deep mourning, with a black cape reaching to her shoe tops, was veiled. She held her gaze on the minister while he read his text but bowed her head as he raised his hand for prayer. Her eyes were dry at the finish of the prayer and in a half choked voice she uttered the word "Amen."

When the minister finished Mrs. Christian stepped back to her original place and Mrs. Harding, leaning on Secretary Christian's arm walked to the front of the coffin and held her hand out to Rev. West and gazed at the face of her dead husband.

However, her gaze lasted for only a moment and she began to talk with Rev. West. Several times she looked toward the small crowd, and after a few seconds her wishes seemed to be instinctively felt by those present. General J. J. Pershing and General Morton led the procession out.

Mrs. Harding stood erect and watched those passing out with never a break in her figure or a catch in her voice as she continued to talk with the minister.

PRESIDENT'S PHYSICIANS

vice did Secretary Christian seem worried about Mrs. Harding. As the minister uttered the words "We bless Thee for his unshrinking courage, his stalwart strength, his radiant kindness and gentleness, and for his self-forgetting devotion to the cause of justice, brotherhood and peace for the individual, the nation and the world, in the propagation of which he sacrificed his life," Secretary Christian removed his arm and started to put it around Mrs. Harding's waist, but as he glanced at her face, he immediately placed his arm where she could again hold it.

Reporters Weep Unashamed

While Mrs. Harding, a pathetic figure, stood dry-eyed, tears of sorrow streamed unchecked down the cheeks of many, including Washington newspaper correspondents among whom the late president numbered many of his closest and most intimate friends.

Men who made a business of reporting the disasters and sadness of the country and who, ordinarily are unconcerned in regard to their work, stood unashamed as they stood and cried for one they loved.

James C. Reynolds, justice of the United States supreme court; Secretaries Hubert Work, Henry C. Wallace and Herbert Hoover, Mrs. Work, Mrs. Hoover and Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Jennings, of Columbus, O., and Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Sawyer, were among the members of the presidential party who lined the room during the religious ceremony, which started at 5:05 p. m. and finished at 5:49 p. m.

COOLIDGE TO KEEP HARDING APPOINTEES

(Continued from Page One) the same principles of publicity about the government which were followed by Mr. Harding.

"This is your government, he said, 'speaking through the newspaper men to the people, and you may exercise a great and helpful influence over the administration. I have no doubt that you will give the administration the necessary cooperation.'

The new president began quietly his first day in the temporary 'White House' improvised for him on the third floor of the Willard hotel. He was up at 8 o'clock, had a talk with personal friends and read a mass of telegrams conveying good wishes of foreign rulers and then received Postmaster-General New to discuss final arrangements for the funeral of President Harding.

The hotel suite at the Willard which has been Mr. Coolidge's home as Vice-President will remain an unofficial 'White House' until the Mrs. Harding leaves the White House.

Today the President's flag, with its blue field and bearing a coat of arms and four white stars in its corners, was displayed on a standard in the reception room of the suite. At the same time four additional rooms were added to the suite.

STATEMENT NOT AMPLIFIED

New York, Aug. 4.—President Calvin Coolidge was whisked through New York yesterday enroute to Washington to take the nation's helm relinquished Thursday night by President Harding.

Sworn in by his aged father, John C. Coolidge, before daybreak yesterday morning, in the parental home at Plymouth, Vermont, the new president motored to Rutland and there boarded a private car which brought him to the Grand Central terminal at 4:15 p. m. eastern standard time. Twenty-seven minutes later he had been escorted, under heavy guard, through silent bare-headed crowds, to Pennsylvania terminal and was speeding toward Washington on a special train.

Grave and quiet, the President avoided all ostentation during his brief stay here. He rode a freight elevator to the street level at the Grand Central, leaving by the 45th street entrance to avoid dense crowds.

bers of the Harding cabinet, he replied: "I do not care to enlarge on that. I think it explains itself."

LEAGUER WINS BURKE COUNTY CONTEST CASE

"Gerrymander" of Commissioner's District Is Held Legal in Court Here

W. C. Mitchell, who contested the election of H. A. Kirkelle for the office of Commissioner of the First District, Burke county, today was held entitled to the office which Kirkelle now holds by District Judge Fred Jansonius, who heard the case at Bowbells.

The case was heard sometime ago and by stipulation of attorneys decision was deferred until the supreme court decided whether or not the redistricting of Burke county was legal. The high court held it legal, and that decision controlled in this case.

The redistricting, which occurred after the June primary and before the November election last year, was in the opinion of politicians, a plain gerrymander by Nonpartisans for the purpose of controlling the board of county commissioners. The Nonpartisans, on the other hand, held it made a more equitable division of the county's districts. The league controlled the county and was able to redistrict it. Now, their candidate, Mitchell, will get the office of county commissioner.

On the basis of the old districts Mitchell received 513 votes and Kirkelle 629 votes. On the basis of the new district Mitchell got 511 and Kirkelle got 470. The latter controlled the election. The election hinged on Richland township and the town of Flaxton, solidly independent, which is within Flaxton was not mentioned in the Richland township. In the redistricted all Richland township was included. Judge Jansonius held, therefore, that Flaxton was included, therefore, opportunity to vote for Kirkelle. The citizens of Flaxton had an opinion. Judge Jansonius holds that the votes of Flaxton and Richland township could not be counted in the election, and after eliminating them he found Mitchell was elected.

The late President Harding had been a member for 18 years, being a stockholder in two Marion, Ohio, lumber companies.

TRAPPER OF EARLY DAYS IN STATE RETURNS TO BISMARCK FOR VISIT

Isadore Bureau of Seattle, Wash., a French trapper in this part of North Dakota for a number of years, is visiting with old friends for the first time in 21 years.

Mr. Bureau was an expert beaver trapper. He trapped wild animals throughout the western part of the state in pioneer days for many years, making Bismarck his headquarters. Today, after an elapse of twenty-one years Mr. Bureau comes back to Bismarck and finds instead of a small town of shacks and dirt streets, a little city with splendidly paved highways.

He declared that he scarcely recognized the city as the little frontier town which he left. After visiting with old friends here for a few days he expects to proceed to Quebec, Canada to visit with relatives whom he has not seen for fifty-four years.

His brother, Jake Bureau who resides at Painted Woods will accompany him on the trip.

When Jake Bureau arrives at the end of the journey he will find a little fortune awaiting for him—a fortune which grew out of three years of labor for an uncle in Quebec fifty-four years ago. Instead of paying Jake the wages in a Quebec bank to place the wages in a Quebec bank to his credit, but Jake could not draw the money until he appeared in person. Now, after more than a half century has passed Jake will return to his old home and find a little fortune waiting for him, a fortune growing out of his wages for three years which has been increased by compound interest during the intervening years.

RUSSIAN TALES LACK THRILLS

Berlin Is New Gateway to Investigators

Riga, Aug. 4.—Latvia has ceased to be the sole gateway to Russia for investigators from all over the world. Berlin is now the chief diving board for politicians, educators, concession chasers and relief workers who are about to plunge into red Russia. Many of them go by aeroplane. Some travel from Berlin to Moscow by way of Warsaw, and others enter through Finland and Estonia. But most of the foreign visitors emerge from Russia through Riga. They are British, American and German, with a sprinkling of Italian, Czechs and Scandinavians.

Visitors coming out of Moscow in breathless haste to tell the world "the real truth" about Russia are much surprised, frequently, to find that their hurried observations do not attract much attention. Since the beginning of international relief work in famine-stricken Russia there has been such a large number of visitors that it is no novelty for Riga to have scores of passengers out of theater, and he was again besieged when the concert, a benefit affair, was concluded.

The French press re-told at great length the story of how the noted artist was expelled from Russia years ago by Emperor Alexander III, after Paderewski had played before the court.

"You are a great artist, and an honor to Russia," the emperor is reported to have said.

"Pardon, Your Majesty," replied Paderewski. "To Poland."

The next day the pianist received an order to leave Russia, and he has never returned since.

The newspapers here also mentioned the fact that on the day of his first concert, Paderewski drove to the theater box office and purchased nearly a hundred seats at regular prices, which he distributed among his friends.

His only request to the management was that he be given a dressing room, so that he could let his hands soak in very hot water for half an hour before the concert. He explained that he had found this the best way to make them supple.

PLACE PUREBREDS ON FARM

Minneapolis, Aug. 4.—Approximately 1,200 additional purebred bulls will be placed on Minnesota farms by January 1, 1923, W. C. Hoeltje, secretary of the Northwest Dairy club, announced Monday. Placement of these additional bulls will prove invaluable to Minnesota farmers in the next few years, Mr. Hoeltje declared. Mr. Hoeltje urged public support for the exposition to be held by the association on the State Fair grounds, September 1 to 8.

Kicking Up a Row in the Philippines

"He may be a brother of William H. Taft, but he ain't no brother of mine," ran the words of a once popular song supposed to indicate the attitude of our soldiers in the Philippines toward the "little brown brothers." And now comes the resignation of the Governor's native Council of State and Cabinet as a protest against Governor-General Wood's policies. The incident has aroused a storm of newspaper criticism pro and con in this country. Read the illuminating article in The Digest this week, which is illustrated with several good pictures.

Hiram Johnson's Opening Gurr

"I went to Europe an American and I returned an American," said Senator Johnson in his speech delivered in New York City this week. The speech seems to be taken as a key-note of what Senator Johnson will discuss in the Senate at the next session. Senator Johnson "has been called a good many things, but no one has ever called him a 'stuffed shirt,'" remarks the Manchester Union; while the Pittsburgh Sun declares that "Hiram merely went over to supply a new stock of old mental furniture."

FRANCE WILL TRY NEW FUEL IN OCTOBER

Nation to be Freed From Use of Foreign Petroleum

ALCOHOL MIXTURE

Gasoline Will Continue in Use For Aero-planes

Paris, Aug. 4.—Alcohol and gasoline, mixed in equal quantities, will be put on the market as the French "national fuel" in October.

Long tests and a multitude of scientific sessions finally evolved this mixture as better than straight gasoline and a great forward step in "freeing France from foreign petroleum domination," a phrase often used in parliament.

France produces much alcohol, used largely in poor country homes for their limited cooking, and in industry. This product, it is held, can be increased many fold, so the country need no longer be dependent upon the heavy importations of petroleum that became a serious problem during the war and is blamed now for helping to keep down the franc.

Scientific commissions have decided half alcohol and half gasoline will not injure an automobile motor, and will give greater flexibility with some increase in power. The cost of the new fuel is a matter of controversy. It is contended by its friends that competition will settle the question of price satisfactorily.

Many other combinations of alcohol, gasoline, kerosene and crude oil have been tried. A test made by a government car recently gave good results with 70 per cent alcohol and 30 per cent kerosene.

Gasoline, however, will remain the fuel for army and navy for the present. The government hopes eventually to find a suitable fuel for its big air force, but the aviation service prefers to watch the work of the new fuel on dry land before running any new risk of stalled motors in the clouds.

MARKET NEWS

STOCK PRICES BREAK ON N. Y. MARKET TODAY

Belief of Leading Financiers That There Is No Reason For It Checks Sales

New York, Aug. 4.—Stock prices broke one to three points today in reflection of the death of President Harding. While leading bankers were of the opinion that the change in administration structure would cause no disturbance to the nation's financial structure, the selling of stocks by frightened investors and speculators was not unexpected. Substantial supporting orders had been placed at prices just below previous closing levels and those served to keep the decline in check. The resistance shown by the market to the early selling pressure inspired more confidence as trading progressed and the trend in the late dealings was upward, with the volume of sales considerably reduced.

Great Northern preferred, Northern Pacific and Chicago and North-western again established new low prices for the year. The closing was heavy. Sales approximated 480,000 shares.

WHEAT MART FIRM TODAY

Holds Fairly Steady in Spite of Death of President

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Although in some quarters a nervous market was looked for as a result of uncertainty in connection with the death of President Harding, the wheat pit today showed no unusual changes during the early dealings. More or less selling in small lots that appeared to be in the nature of hedging against purchases of wheat in the country tended somewhat to weaken values, but price fluctuations kept within narrow limits. Commencement of the season for general buyers to a moderate extent on the declines. Opening prices which ranged from 1/2 cent lower to 1/4 cent advance with September 95 1/2 to 95 3/4 and December 1.00 1/4 to 1.00 3/4 were followed by a setback of 1/4 cent in some cases and then a slight rally.

Subsequently, favorable weather conditions in the Canadian Northwest together with declines in the New York stock market had a slightly bearish effect. Wheat closed unsettled, 1/2 cent to 1/4 cent lower, with September 95 1/2 to 95 3/4 and December 1.00 1/4 to 1.00 3/4.

START 2 YEAR CAMPING TOUR OF STATES

Leave Hartford on 28,000 Trip Through Western United States

ANDERSON - JONES'ES

Travel With All Comforts of Home in "Portable House" on Hudson

A vacation that extends over a period of two years and a tour of 20,000 miles is being enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. A. Jones and daughter, Miss Mildred, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Anderson of Hartford, Conn., who stopped in Bismarck today on the first leg of their journey westward. Just a month ago today the party left Hartford in their Hudson touring car with its "portable house," equipped with all the essentials of a modern home. After traveling 2,400 miles and camping all the way the two families were delighted with their first taste of touring in the United States.

Their trip includes all the places of interest in the west as shown by railroad and publicity bulletins. They will spend as much time as they like in the Yellowstone Park, touch the Black Hills, moving toward Portland and Seattle, where they will take in the sights before starting their trip down the coast into California. They will stop in all the big cities, cross the southern part of the United States and make the return trip by way of Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico. Last year the party toured in Canada.

"We are taking it leisurely," said Mr. Jones in speaking of his trip. "We make 140, 150 or 170 miles a day, depending upon the kind of roads we strike, then stop for a week or two at a place to rest up and enjoy the scenery, and take in all the places of interest."

"We have had no car trouble so far," said Mr. Jones.

It is not however, for Mr. Jones to boast of that since he is a garage man himself when at home in Hartford and as soon as the breathing of the car becomes irregular or the mechanical parts thump to show that something is wrong, Mr. Jones' sense tells him what is wrong and he is able to remedy it before anything serious happens. Mr. Anderson, who uses plane and saw when at home designed the "bungalow type" dwelling in which the family resides while Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Anderson advised him on interior decorations. Naturally arrangements of the rooms from kitchen to living room and bed room are of the most up-to-date with electric lights, bath tub, and kitchen stove.

When it rains the kitchen range is pulled from under the bunk of parlor car seat and set-up in the middle of the house—for room has been left between the front and back seats to allow this. Then the ham and eggs are started sizzling, the coffee sends forth its fragrant aroma, and the dwelling is comfortably warmed for the family to partake of their excellent breakfast or dinner.

"All the members of the party have excellent appetites," said Mr. Jones, "and we find ham and eggs a very satisfying meal—although of course we are able to purchase all the vegetables of the season as we traverse the country and obtain the finest dairy products from the farmers."

"There is no dread of making camp with us," asserted Mr. Jones. "All we have to do when night comes is to halt our car in some sheltered spot, near running water or at one of the fine tourist camps which line the highways of the United States, throw back our seats—and the bed chambers are ready for occupancy. We have cupboards for our clothing, built in cabinets to hold cooking utensils, screens for our windows in case mosquitoes are had in the weather warm. Scarcely five minutes is required to transform our 'coach' into a kitchen, a bed room, or a living room," asserted Mr. Jones.

"And Mrs. Anderson and I enjoy doing our mending or sewing as we move along or stop for the night," said Mrs. Jones. "I never live in a handier little house—all things considered."

Europeans Ready To Flock To U. S.

Minot, N. D., Aug. 4.—Rev. Otto Engel of Randolph, Wis., who recently returned from Germany and Poland, where he spent ten months in relief work under the auspices of the German Lutheran church organization, visited Minot over the week end.

He expects to return to Europe in September to continue his work. Mr. Engel met with a number of Minot citizens and hopes to do some colonization work in this vicinity. He says that thousands of young men from those countries are looking toward America as their goal and would come here if they had the money. It requires about $200 to bring each man to North Dakota and if this money can be advanced, these men will come and work on farms, securing their own homes as soon as they are able. The men would pay the money back as soon as they earn it, he says.

Rev. Mr. Engel after making an investigation of conditions in North Dakota, believes there is room for thousands of these men who in time would prove an important factor in developing our agricultural resources. German and Polish farmers are thrifty, hard working people, and they would succeed well here, he is certain.

DROWNED AT DUNSMITH
Minot, Aug. 4.—Miss Beryl Brooks, a Detroit, Mich. young woman, was drowned in Engle's creek, six miles east of Minot, early last week, while bathing. Miss Brooks was visiting with a cousin, Mrs. Carl Engle, and went to the creek with Mr. Engle and his son.

NORTH DAKOTA VETERAN WINS GOOD POSITION

Disabled by War, He Takes Opportunity of Government Training and Succeeds

When the war came Charles A. Loughlin, Jr., was a young student at the University of North Dakota.

He went to Revere's training camp, won a lieutenant's commission, and served in company "M," 28th Infantry, First Division, with the A. E. F. in France, where he saw much active service. On May 29, 1918, at Montdidier, he was wounded in the head. Subsequently, on July 21, 1918, at Soissons he received a high explosive wound in the left leg. This wound kept him in various hospitals for about two years, and left him with a serious and permanent disability. He suffers from static arthritis and neuritis of the left leg. He is entitled to wear two wound chevrons and two gold war service chevrons.

Immediately upon his discharge he was awarded vocational training by the U. S. Veterans' Bureau, and chose to finish the law course which he had begun before enlisting.

His work at the University of Minnesota was brilliant. His average in all the studies in the course was above "B," and he was graduated at the head of his class with a scholarship record that has seldom been equaled at the University School of Law.

He won the James A. Jaggard prize of $50 for the best work on the Minnesota Law Review in 1922. In 1923 he was Revere Case Editor on the same publication. Election to the staff of the Review is solely on the basis of scholarship. In 1923 he won the Evan A. Evans prize of $40 and was voted the degree of L. L. B. by the faculty in spite of some deficiencies in academic credits because of his splendid record in his law studies.

Mr. Loughlin is a member of the Phi Delta Phi law fraternity, the Phi Kappa Phi honorary academic society, and the Order of the Colif, an honorary law society.

He has established a fine connection with a leading law firm and will engage in the practice of law in Minneapolis.

5-YEAR TERM IN DENTISTRY SCHOOLS SEEN

Great Changes Taking Place in Dental Education Throughout America

The Dental Educational Council of America through its secretary, Dr. Albert L. Midgley, of Providence, R. I., today issued the following statement:

The course of study for a Degree in Dentistry in the United States will be lengthened from four years to five. All the Dental Schools will be brought to a higher standard of excellence, especially in medico-dental subjects. Hereafter in the preparation of the general health of the individual, there will be closer cooperation between the physician and the dentist. These results will follow a survey and classification of Dental Schools recently completed by the Dental Educational Council of America.

Great changes are taking place in Dental Education owing to recent discoveries of the intimate connection between the condition of the teeth and general health. It has been clearly shown that decayed and abscessed teeth often cause heart disease, rheumatism, neuritis, eczema, mental disorders and other serious diseases. So important has the relation between sound teeth and good health become that it is necessary now to raise educational standards in order to prepare students properly to meet the public needs and to maintain the position of world-wide supremacy that American Dentistry has always held.

The rapid forward trend in dental education is shown by the fact that many privately owned schools have become recently organic parts of universities. There is no doubt that the few remaining schools of this type will take the same course in the near future.

A prescribed minimum standard for dental schools is fixed by the Council, and all existing institutions have been classified in accordance with this standard. Two classes, "A" and "B," are allowed for schools whose curriculum, teaching staff, equipment and methods are considered high enough to justify the expectation that their graduates can pass the examinations prescribed by State Dental Examining Boards and will become effective Registered Dentists. Schools placed in class "C" by the Council are believed to need such thorough reorganization that the council will recommend to the various State Dental Examining Boards that their graduates be barred from registration pending action by the officials of the schools so classified to bring their institutions up to the minimum standard set by the Educational Council.

The Dental Educational Council of America, representing the entire Dental profession, all the dental schools and all the state dental examining boards, issues the following classification of dental schools in effect from August 1, 1923.

Class "A" schools are those which have been classified in accordance with the minimum standard set by the Educational Council. These schools are allowed for schools whose curriculum, teaching staff, equipment and methods are considered high enough to justify the expectation that their graduates can pass the examinations prescribed by State Dental Examining Boards and will become effective Registered Dentists. DURUM WHEAT STANDS WELL IN NORTHWEST

Less Injured by Heat or Disease Than Many Other Grains, Is Crop Report

The weekly crop report of the Van Dusen Harrington Company, Minneapolis, follows:

"The harvesting of wheat is now general throughout the Northwest with the exception of northern districts in North Dakota and parts of Montana.

"Cooler weather the past few days has brought great relief to this section of the country. A serious loss, however, has occurred in the small grain crops.

"Wheat and rye have suffered most, but the yields of oats and barley have been reduced principally through premature ripening.

"Black rust has been unusually severe this year. Some of the early wheat which was well filled at the time it became affected by the black rust is not maturing properly.

"Blight and heat have also been important factors and have caused serious damage. There will be a wide range both in quality and weight of the wheat this year. Some early threshing returns from Iowa indicate a yield of wheat from five to eight bushels to the acre, with a weight of 55 pounds to the bushel.

"As previously reported, the durum wheat has withstood the adverse conditions much better than the bread wheat, although there are places where the damage will probably run as high as one-third.

"The corn crop, while in need of rain in a number of districts, is the best, in several years. It has a fine stand and is particularly thrifty.

"Rye harvesting is practically completed but the outcome has been very disappointing. Some fields of rye were plowed under for feed while others were harvested, did not average over 2 or 3 bushels per acre. In a few places the yield has been as high as 10 or 12 bushels per acre.

"We have made many inquiries as to damage on flax caused by the recent hot weather. Some of our correspondents feel that there was but little damage, while others estimate it as high as 10 percent to early flax.

The forcing weather has probably helped the late flax to a considerable extent and may bring much of it to maturity that otherwise would have been caught by the early frost.

MORE LABOR THAN JOBS

Farmers May Secure Men Through Free Employment Office

There were more men reporting to the state-federal free employment bureau in Bismarck today than there were jobs, Herman Brocopp, in charge of the office said.

Several days ago men were scarce, but the $5 special railroad rate has brought in a large number. Today there were 15 to 20 men willing to work more than there were jobs.

Farmers all over western North Dakota are invited to make use of the office in Bismarck to secure labor.

DRUGGISTS TO CONVE

More than 200 druggists from all over North Dakota will be in Bismarck next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday for the annual convention of the state association. An elaborate program has been prepared for the convention.

$75,000 REVETMENT JOB ON RIVER TO BE DONE IN FALL AND WINTER

The state highway commission, in meeting here, voted to cooperate with the United States Engineers, War Department, the United States Bureau of Public Roads and the Northern Pacific Railway for the purpose of revetment work on the Missouri river just above the Northern Pacific railroad bridge on the west side of the river. About 5,000 feet of shore line will be revetted, at an estimated cost of $75,000, the work to be done next fall and winter. The state's share of the expense will be nominal.

The revetment work was urged chiefly to prevent erosion which it was feared might result in damage to the Northern Pacific Railroad, the new Missouri river bridge and perhaps Mandan as well as keeping the channel clear.

The work will be done under the direction of War Department engineers. It will be started in the fall and much of it done during the winter, men working from the ice. Wire, timber, brush matting and similar materials are used in the revetment to hold the clay banks of the river in place against the wanderings of the "Big Muddy."

Hail Insurance Claims Large
The state hail insurance department continue in excess of the claims for the same date last year, although the disparity has been somewhat removed in the last week by absence of many damaging hail storms. Claims to date this year total 15,600 as compared to 12,500 for the same period last year.

5-YEAR TERM IN DENTISTRY SCHOOLS SEEN

Great Changes Taking Place in Dental Education Throughout America

The Dental Educational Council of America through its secretary, Dr. Albert L. Midgley, of Providence, R. I., today issued the following statement:

The course of study for a Degree in Dentistry in the United States will be lengthened from four years to five. All the Dental Schools will be brought to a higher standard of excellence, especially in medico-dental subjects. Hereafter in the preparation of the general health of the individual, there will be closer cooperation between the physician and the dentist. These results will follow a survey and classification of Dental Schools recently completed by the Dental Educational Council of America.

Great changes are taking place in Dental Education owing to recent discoveries of the intimate connection between the condition of the teeth and general health. It has been clearly shown that decayed and abscessed teeth often cause heart disease, rheumatism, neuritis, eczema, mental disorders and other serious diseases. So important has the relation between sound teeth and good health become that it is necessary now to raise educational standards in order to prepare students properly to meet the public needs and to maintain the position of world-wide supremacy that American Dentistry has always held.

The rapid forward trend in dental education is shown by the fact that many privately owned schools have become recently organic parts of universities. There is no doubt that the few remaining schools of this type will take the same course in the near future.

A prescribed minimum standard for dental schools is fixed by the Council, and all existing institutions have been classified in accordance with this standard. Two classes, "A" and "B," are allowed for schools whose curriculum, teaching staff, equipment and methods are considered high enough to justify the expectation that their graduates can pass the examinations prescribed by State Dental Examining Boards and will become effective Registered Dentists. Schools placed in class "C" by the Council are believed to need such thorough reorganization that the council will recommend to the various State Dental Examining Boards that their graduates be barred from registration pending action by the officials of the schools so classified to bring their institutions up to the minimum standard set by the Educational Council.

FRANCE WILL TRY NEW FUEL IN OCTOBER

Nation to be Freed From Use of Foreign Petroleum

ALCOHOL MIXTURE

Gasoline Will Continue in Use For Aeroplanes

Paris, Aug. 4.—Alcohol and gasoline, mixed in equal quantities, will be put on the market as the French "national fuel" in October.

Long tests and a multitude of scientific sessions finally evolved this mixture as better than straight gasoline and a great forward step in "freeing France from foreign petroleum domination," a phrase often used in parliament.

France produces much alcohol, used largely in poor country homes for their limited cooking, and in industry. This production, it is held, can be increased many fold, so the country need no longer be dependent upon the heavy importations of petroleum that became a serious problem during the war.

Scientific commissions have decided half alcohol and half gasoline will not injure an automobile motor, will not increase the consumption, and will give greater flexibility with some increase in power. The cost of the new fuel is a matter of controversy. It is estimated by its friends that competition will settle the question of price satisfactorily.

Many other combinations of alcohol, gasoline, kerosene and crude oil have been tried. A test made by a government car recently gave good results with 70 per cent alcohol and 30 per cent kerosene.

Gasoline, however, will remain the fuel for army airplanes for the present. The government hopes eventually to find a suitable fuel for its big air force, but the aviation service prefers to watch the work of the new fuel on dry land before running any new risk of stalled motors in the clouds.

MARKET NEWS

STOCK PRICES BREAK ON N. Y. MARKET TODAY

Belief of Leading Financiers That There Is No Reason For It Checks Sales

New York, Aug. 4.—Stock prices broke one to three points today in reflection of the death of President Harding. While leading bankers were of the opinion that the change in administration structure would cause no disturbance to the nation's financial structure the selling of stock by frightened investors and speculators was not unexpected. Substantial supporting orders have been placed at prices that have previously closing levels and those served to keep the decline in check. The resistance shown by the market to the early selling pressure inspired more confidence as trading progressed and the trend in the late dealings was upward, with the volume of sales considerably reduced.

WHEAT MART FIRM TODAY

Holds Fairly Steady in Spite of Death of President

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Although in some quarters a nervous market was looked for as a result of uncertainty in connection with the death of President Harding the wheat pit today showed no unusual changes during the early dealings. More or less selling in small lots that appeared to be in the nature of hedging against purchases of wheat in the country tended somewhat to weaken values, but price fluctuations kept within narrow limits. Commission houses were general buyers to a moderate extent on the declines. Opening prices which ranged from 1/2 cent to 1/4 cent advance with September 95 1/2c to 95 3/4c and December 91 1/2c to 91 3/4c were followed by a setback of 1/4 cent in some cases and then a slight rally.

Subsequently favorable weather conditions in the Canadian Northwest together with declines in the New York stock market had a slightly bullish effect. Wheat closed unsettled, 1/4 cent to 1/2 cent lower, with September 96 1/2c to 96 3/4c and December 91 1/2c to 91 3/4c.

PRAYER READ FOR PRESIDENT BY REV. WEST

Baptist Minister of San Francisco Also Prays for Calvin Coolidge

San Francisco, Aug. 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Rev. James S. West, pastor of the First Baptist church of San Francisco, delivered the following prayer at the services for President Harding here last evening.

"Almighty God, our Heavenly Father, Thou art the Supreme Ruler of the nation and the world, the loving Heavenly Father of all Thy children, almighty, in Thy strength and infinite in Thy tenderness.

"We approach Thee humbly and reverently but boldly and expectantly in this hour when our hearts are wrung with sorrow, the nation is bowed in grief, and the eyes and heart sympathies of the world are turned toward this place.

The great and beloved chief magistrate of our nation has suddenly fallen at the moment when we most brightly hoped that our earnest prayers for his speedy and complete recovery were being graciously answered, when his great work, as it seemed to us, had only well begun. Our hearts are broken, we are sore stricken with the sense of loss to his family, loved ones, friends, the nation and the world.

"Our hope is in Thee, and Thee only. We humbly beseech Thee that Thine infinite grace and comfort may be bestowed upon us abundantly in this hour of our supreme need as individuals, and as a nation.

Thanks Expressed

"We thank Thee out of the depths of our hearts for the noble, Christian character, lofty principles, and notable service of him whom Thou has called from sacrificial service to rest eternal. We bless Thee for his unshrinking courage, his stalwart strength, his radiant kindness and gentleness and for his self-forgetting devotion to the cause of justice, brotherhood and peace for the individual, the nation and the world, in the propagation of which he sacrificed his life, and as a martyr to which he is lovingly enshrined forever in the hearts of the grief-stricken but grateful people.

"We fondly hope and earnestly pray that what he wished and sought to accomplish by his life may now be accomplished by his death. Raise up others, we beseech Thee, who shall carry forward and complete the great work which he began.

"We beseech Thee to bless with wisdom, peace and strength, all those who were associated with him in the great affairs of the nation, and upon whom with his going there rests a burden of responsibility.

"We beseech Thee, especially, to bless him who by this providence is called to the chief magistracy of the republic.

"Let Thy tenderest benediction of comfort and sustaining grace be upon members of the stricken family, his aged father, his brother, and sisters, especially upon his faithful, devoted wife, and helpmate. Comfort her with the hope of eternal life and according to her great need, be Thou her sufficiency day by day until that bright morning dawn when she shall see again the face of him whom she has loved long since and lost awhile.

"We make this petition for Thy rich blessing upon the nation and the world in the name of Him who is the resurrection and the life, Jesus Christ, Our Lord and Saviour."

The late president, and Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, were the only persons in the room who were seated during the ceremony. The attorney general was helped into the room by Lieut. Commander Joel T. Boone, one of the late president's physicians, and was assisted from the room by Commander Boone after the ceremony.

Mrs. Harding was the last to enter the room. She was holding the arm of Secretary Christian and continued to hold his arm as she stood in the center of the room directly in front of the glass covered coffin.

When Rev. West concluded his Bible text and bowed his head for prayer, Mrs. Christian stepped from the side of the room and stood on Mrs. Harding's right. Both Mr. and Mrs. Christian held the widow's arms throughout the entire ceremony.

Wears Deep Mourning

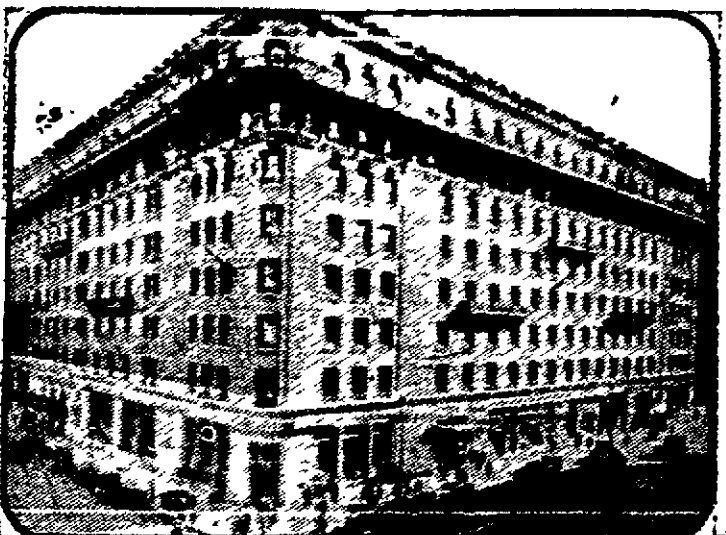

Mrs. Harding, dressed in deep mourning, with a black cape reaching to her shoe tops, was veiled. She held her gaze on the minister while he read his text but bowed her head as he raised his hand for prayer. Her eyes were dry at the finish of the prayer and in a half choked voice she uttered the word "Amen."

When the minister finished Mrs. Christian stepped back to her original place and Mrs. Harding, leaning on Secretary Christian's arm walked to the front of the coffin and held her hand out to Rev. West and gazed at the face of her dead husband.

However, her gaze lasted for only a moment and she began to talk with Rev. West. Several times she looked toward the small crowd and after a few seconds her wishes seemed to be instinctively felt by those present. General J. J. Pershing and General Morton led the procession out.

Mrs. Harding stood erect and watched those passing out with never a break in her figure or a catch in her voice as she continued to talk with the minister. Only once during the entire service did Secretary Christian seem worried about Mrs. Harding. As the minister uttered the words "We bless Thee for his unshrinking courage, his stalwart strength, his radiant kindness and gentleness; for his self-forgetting devotion to the cause of justice, brotherhood and peace for the individual, the nation and the world, in the propagation of which he sacrificed his life," Secretary Christian removed his arm and started to put it around Mrs. Harding's waist, but as he glanced at her face, he immediately placed his arm where she could again hold it.

Reporters Weep Unashamed

While Mrs. Harding, a pathetic figure, stood dry-eyed, a tear of sorrow streamed unchecked down the cheeks of many, including Washington newspaper correspondents among whom the late president numbered many of his closest and most intimate friends.

Men who made a business of reporting the disasters and sadness of the country and who, ordinarily are unconcerned in regard to their work, stood unashamed as they stood and cried for one they loved.

James C. Reynolds, justice of the United States supreme court; Secretaries Hubert Work, Henry C. Wallace and Herbert Hoover, Mrs. Work, Mrs. Hoover and Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Jennings, of Columbus, O., and Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Sawyer, were among the members of the presidential party who lined the room during the religious ceremony, which started at 5:05 p. m. and finished at 5:49 p. m.

LEAGUER WINS BURKE COUNTY CONTEST CASE

"Gerrymander" of Commissioner's District Is Held Legal in Court Here

W. C. Mitchell, who contested the election of H. A. Kirkelle for the office of Commissioner of the First District, Burke county, today was held entitled to the office which Kirkelle now holds by District Judge Fred Jansonsius, who heard the case at Bowbells. The case was heard sometime ago and by stipulation of attorneys decision was deferred until the supreme court decided whether or not the redistricting of Burke county was legal. The high court held it legal, and that decision controlled in this case.

The redistricting, which occurred after the June primary and before the November election last year, was, in the opinion of politicians, a plain gerrymander by Nonpartisans for the purpose of controlling the board of county commissioners. The Nonpartisans, on the other hand, held it made a more equitable division of the commissioners' districts. The league controlled the county and was able to redistrict it. Now, their candidate, Mitchell, will get the office of county commissioner.

On the basis of the old districts Mitchell received 513 votes and Kirkelle 628 votes. On the basis of the new district Mitchell got 511 and Kirkelle got 470. The latter controls.

The election hinged on Richland township and the town of Flaxton, solidly independent, which is within Flaxton was not mentioned but Richland township in the redistricted all Richland township was included. Judge Jansonsius holds, therefore, that Flaxton was included.

The citizens of Flaxton had an opinion. Judge Jansonsius holds that the votes of Flaxton and Richland township should not be counted in the election and after eliminating them he found Mitchell was elected.

TRAPPER OF EARLY DAYS IN STATE RETURNS TO BISMARCK FOR VISIT

Isadore Bureau of Seattle, Wash., a French trapper in this part of North Dakota for a number of years, is visiting with old friends for the first time in 21 years.

Mr. Bureau was an expert beaver trapper. He trapped wild animals through the western part of the state in pioneer days for many years, making Bismarck his headquarters. Today, after an elapse of twenty-one years Mr. Bureau came back to Bismarck and finds instead of a small town of shacks and dirt streets, a little city with splendidly paved highways.

He declared that he scarcely recognized the city as the little frontier town which he left. After visiting with old friends here for a few days he expects to proceed to Quebec, Canada to visit with relatives whom he has not seen for fifty-four years.

His brother, Jake Bureau who resides at Painted Woods will accompany him on the trip.

When Jake Bureau arrives at the end of the journey he will find a little fortune waiting for him—a fortune which grew out of three years of labor for an uncle in Quebec fifty-four years ago. Instead of paying Jake the wages he earned the uncle placed the wages in a Quebec bank to his credit, but Jake could not draw the money until he appeared in person. Now, after more than a half century has passed Jake will return to his old home and find a little fortune waiting for him, a fortune growing out of his wages for three years which has been increased by compound interest during the intervening years.

RUSSIAN TALES LACK THRILLS

Berlin Is New Gateway to Investigators

Riga, Aug. 4.—Latvia has ceased to be the sole gateway to Russia for investigators from all over the world. Berlin is now the chief diving board for politicians, educators, concession chasers and relief workers who are about to plunge into red Russia. Many of them go by aeroplane. Some travel from Berlin to Moscow by way of Warsaw, and others enter through Finland and Estonia. But most of the foreign visitors emerge from Russia through Riga. They are British, American and German, with a sprinkling of Italians, Czechs and Scandinavians.

Visitors coming out of Moscow in breathless haste to tell the world "the real truth" about Russia are much surprised, frequently, to find that their hurried observations do not attract much attention. Since the beginning of international relief work in famine-stricken Russia there has been such a large number of visitors that it is no novelty for Riga to have scores of passengers out of

"He may be a brother of William H. And now comes the resignation of the Governor's native Council of State and Cabinet as a protest against Governor-General Wood's policies. The incident has aroused a storm of newspaper criticism pro and con in this country. Read the illuminating article in The Digest this week, which is illustrated with several good pictures.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

THE TASK BEFORE HIM

Yet in the midst of its grief over the loss of its chief executive, the nation turns a thought to the new President, his character and ability. For life must go on. The nation must be governed.

Calvin Coolidge assumes a great task. With the nation still in its period of adjustment from war conditions he takes the helm to remain in office, unless re-elected, for nineteen months. He received votes for the nomination for the Presidency in the Republican convention of 1920; many believed he was the strong man that should fill the President's chair, and fate has decreed that the judgment of these few shall be tested.

Calvin Coolidge has not occupied the public eye to any great extent for two and one-half years. He has accepted calmly the obscurity that attaches to the Vice-Presidency. He has been publicly discussed for his stand during the Boston policemen's strike while Governor of Massachusetts—and he has been criticized for his cold serenity.

He came from the farm and knows the hard labor involved in seeking a livelihood from Vermont soil. He labored diligently at college and as hard in a law office in Northampton, Massachusetts. He filled various lesser offices in his city and in the state legislature, was elected Governor in 1918 and reelected in 1920.

His opponents attacked his attitude in the policemen's strike as anti-labor. Yet while a candidate for Governor his platform included reduction of working hours for women and minors, increase in the compensation law allowance, a state soldiers' bonus. His record is not that of one who might be classed as anti-labor. Rather, as he stated, "Our case shall be law and order."

Taciturn even as a boy, quiet and dignified, he does not appear to possess the great warmth of soul which won men so steadfastly to Warren G. Harding. Yet The Tribune's biographer yesterday told us that while Governor of Massachusetts his quiet manner, his apparent great reserve power made him an outstanding figure in all deliberations.

He is modest in habits. When elected to the Vice-Presidency he still kept the small rented house to which he took his bride.

Mr. Coolidge has had admirable training in the science of government, and his firm powers of decision, his undoubted probity and his firm sense of righteousness are admirable qualities. He may prove that a beaming face is not necessary to express the deepest feeling for his fellow men. He will carry with him to the Presidency the heart-felt wishes of the nation that he may succeed in the great task before him.

SUN-STROKE

It begins to look as if 1923 is going to be an exceptionally big year for heat prostrations and sun-stroke. The death rate by heat varies in different years a lot more than you'd imagine. In the last 12 years, fatal heat prostrations were 33 times as numerous in one year as in another. This is revealed by records of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

In 1920 only one insurance policy holder in 500,000 died of heat prostration.

In 1911 the rate was 33 in every 500,000. The national death rate from sun-stroke, of course, runs much higher, for these figures are based on insurance policy holders, most of whom are matured, and do not take into account infants, who are particularly susceptible to death by heat.

Negroes are more subject to death by sun-stroke than are white people. No one ever has been able to explain this satisfactorily. Logically the negro should be able to withstand more punishment from the sun, for his African ancestors have developed and passed on to him a high sense of immunity to sun's heat and humidity.

The African hunts in the jungle, but generally, lives in the shade.

The explanation is: The white man is more cautious, takes better care of himself, and thereby is more immune from heat prostration than the negro is by natural inheritance.

The highest death rates from heat are not, as might be supposed, in the hot southern states. As far north as Michigan and Wisconsin the sun-stroke rate is far above average. In the south, they get used to it. And, possessing a more accurate realization of sun-stroke dangers, the southerner is more careful than the northerner.

As most mothers know, babies are very subject to heat prostration and should be watched and protected with extreme care during hot or humid weather.

Even greater care should be exercised in the case of elderly people, for almost half of the deaths from heat and sun-stroke are those of persons above 50 years of age.

If you cannot avoid being exposed to the sun for long periods during heat waves, fresh green leaves inside your hat will help remarkably at keeping you cool.

WINE

France checks up and finds that last year she produced 50 per cent more wine than in 1913. Using the same years for comparison, the export of French wines decreased 65 per cent in value, despite increase in prices.

And the excess is not all being stored, by any means. The French ministry of agriculture issues a proclamation "viewing with alarm the increased use of alcoholic drinks among the French."

Europe has its own prohibition problem without worrying about ours.

LAWING

A father sues his son for a million dollars in Providence, R. I. Pa. claims he turned the money over to son for investment and son has failed to keep up the income payments as agreed. An unusual case. Maybe the psychologists can explain why you would be less surprised if a son were suing his father.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

WARREN G. HARDING

President Warren G. Harding is dead and a Nation mourns.

Just at a time when his Countrymen were reassured that his illness would soon pass and that he would again step forth, in all his vigor, to carry on during these days of reconstruction, his voice is stilled and his hand stayed by the Angel of Death.

The loss to America is irreparable because he was a great man and a great Executive. It did not fall to his lot to be the head of the Nation during the troublous days of war, but to him probably had been entrusted a more difficult task—that of placing his Country on a peacetime basis following the most terrible conflict in the history of the World.

With a full realization of the responsibility he accepted the call of a people to service. With calm and sound judgment, with an abiding faith in Him who rules the Universe, he undertook to point the path along which America must tread if she was to enjoy the fruition of her hopes.

The story of how well he builded must be left to history, but it is certain that history will accord him a high place among American Presidents.

His work was only begun. The foundation, however, had been laid with care, and upon that foundation had his life been spared, he would have placed his achievements in a permanent structure. This work must now be left to others, but it will be easier because of his foresight, his optimism, his counsel.

His death is a penalty he has paid for his devotion to duty and his love for his Country. But few know how hard he has worked, what application he has been compelled to give to the great problems that were before him. The trip to Alaska which has ended so tragically weakened him already none too rugged constitution to a point where it could not withstand disease.

He died in service. If he could have chosen the manner of his passing, that would have been the way he would have desired to go.

Warren G. Harding, then, is dead, but Warren G. Harding lives in memory, and that memory will continue to live in the minds and hearts of the American people.—Fargo Forum.

One Place Where a Dollar Buys More'n Enough

LETTER FROM SYDNEY CARTON TO JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT.

I have been wondering, old chap, if I had better write you this letter.

You may be sure that I would have come over and told what I am going to say to you if I could possibly have gotten away, but the Strathmore case comes up tomorrow and I must be in court. I think, however, you should know immediately what I am going to tell you.

Paula Perier came to town yesterday and sent for me to come over to the hotel. First I thought I would go, as it seemed to me that the Perier episode was a chapter in your life that should be covered. However, she got me on the phone and begged me to come.

"The last time, it is, monsieur, that you will see Paula," she said in her queer little idiom, "and for all necessary, thinking I am, there are necessary some exp. She has grown thin and pale. She has lost much of her vivacity, but she has gained immeasurably in a kind of madonna-like beauty. She seems all eyes and pathetic smile. I am sure she is going to make a great hit on the screen in a certain type of picture. She told me that she already had an offer from one of the big directors to take a small part in his next picture. "He is French, you know," she said, "and I think he first became interested in me because I spoke the language. At

And then, Jack, she asked about you. "Is he well—is he happy?" she asked tremulously.

"No, he is not very happy just at present," Paula, I answered. And then I told her about Leslie.

Jack, I never liked Paula Perier as well as I did while she was listening to Leslie's unhappy story. "Poor, poor woman," she said. "It is I who know. It is I who sympathize and give, for through it all I have gone." And then without any embarrassment whatever she said, "My baby—would you like to see him?"

With that she went into the other room and brought out a little bundle of flannel and lace, and I swear to you, Jack, that as she held it to her breast she looked like the type that all of us conceive when we think of "Mother"—a mother with her first-born. She pulled the little shawl away from the face of the child and I fairly gasped—for in his sleep that baby pulled down one corner of his mouth and wrinkled up his nose in exactly the same way you do, Jack. It was uncanny.

"Sweet, is he not?" she asked. Instead of answering, I questioned. "What are you going to do with him? Surely you are not going to take him out to Hollywood with you, are you?"

"But yes, with him I can do nothing else, and he is my baby—just mine alone. I do not have to answer to any one for him but Le Bon Dieu."

I could not help wondering, Jack, if you would have to answer to some good God, or some malignant devil, for that little helpless bit of humanity. If you ever saw him you could not deny him. And yet I do not think

HOLD VIOLATOR OF PISTOL LAW

Grand Forks, Aug. 4.—The first instance of a person in this section of the state being charged with the violation of the pistol and revolver law (Senate Bill No. 256), passed by the North Dakota legislature at its last session, will be the case of Clarence Moline, arrested by local police officers Monday night in a raid on a house located on the lower end of Cottonwood street. At that time two .38 calibre revolvers and a .12 gauge shot gun were found, it is claimed, in a Studebaker touring car belonging to Moline, which was parked near the Moline, who is scheduled to get his hearing Wednesday, will be charged with the violation of Article 6 of the law, which is relative to the carrying of concealed pistols. The law reads: "No person shall carry a pistol or revolver concealed in any vehicle or in any package, satchel, grip, suitcase, or carry in any way or upon his person, except in his dwelling house or place of business, without a license therefor as hereinafter provided. Violation of this section shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than one year, and upon conviction the pistol or revolver shall be confiscated and destroyed."

There was a certain amount of sickness in Hyde's colic-lines and, for that reason, Lai-Ho had been told-off to attend to the wants of both the genial planter and his guest, an arrangement which—if it were not altogether agreeable to the Chinaman—gave Pennington ample opportunity of observing closely the man through whom he vaguely hoped to trace Chai-Hung.

They were sitting one evening over their after-dinner cigars, when Hyde, who was groping for something in a trouser pocket, uttered a muffled exclamation and withdrew his hand. The thing that he held between finger and thumb fluttered to the cloth and both men, springing to their feet bent in speechless amazement over a Chinese playing-card. The black back of the thing lay uppermost and Pennington turned it over with his nail.

It was Hyde who broke the silence. "The Yellow Seven!" he muttered hoarsely. "I wonder—"

Before he could complete the sentence, Pennington had wrenched open the door, sending Lai-Ho, who had been listening on the other side, pitching forward on his face. Something shot from the region of his waist and rolled to the planter's feet. It was knife with a long, thin blade and a handle of buffalo-horn.

Hyde stooped to pick it up, and Pennington, his hands resting lightly on his hips, surveyed the prostrate oriental with interest.

"Get up, my friend," he advised him coldly. "There are many questions I would like to ask you." He pointed to the card which still lay on the table. "Who gave you that Yellow-Seven?"

Lai-Ho scrambled to his feet and backed toward the doorway, his eyes blazing fury. Suddenly, as Pennington sought to intercept him, the entire expression of the swarthy features changed and the Englishman realized that the Chinese was looking beyond him. At the same moment, a cry from Hyde brought Pennington round on his heel in time to see a bamboo pole, propelled from without shatter the lamp-glass and plunge the room into darkness.

The faint light from resting lightly on his hips, surveyed the prostrate oriental with interest.

"What are you going to do?" demanded Hyde, striking two together and mounting a chair.

Pennington had already reached the veranda-rail and was peering into the blackness of the tropic night.

"Follow, old son!" he shouted back over his shoulder. "Follow for all I'm worth!"

He vaulted lightly to the soft earth below, and the planter, relinquishing his attempt to re-light the lamp, joined him.

"Seen anything?"

The other nodded.

"There were two of 'em. They were making for the bottom of the slope. Are you coming?"

"Most certainly, it's ages since I had any excitement to speak of."

"I fancy I can promise you some," returned Pennington grimly. "Come on."

On the open ground between the huts they encountered a Sikh watchman who had just passed two men making excitedly to the bare quarters of a plantation. Hyde noticed that the were breathless with running, and he thought one of them was the manager's servant.

Presently they were in the open paddi-lands, the incessant droning of insects in their ears, and the two fugitives clearly visible to a bare quarter-of-a-mile distant. Hyde's was forging ahead at such a pace that the planter found it difficult to keep up with him. In twenty minutes they had halved the distance that stretched between them and their quarry.

An hour later—

Hyde had recognized Lai-Ho, and saw the white patch of his face as he glanced apprehensively back, and then he lost both of them in a belt of trees that rose like an oasis in a desert of sand. Pennington made a sudden spurt forward and vanished, too. On the other side of the trees the planter emerged alone to discover nothing but moon-light and still more paddi-land. Wondering greatly, he sank into a sitting position on a fallen log, and felt for his pipe. A voice came to him from the darkness.

"Hyde! Where are you?"

"Here. Where are you?"

"In the proverbial soup," returned Pennington, dropping from a bough. "They've split company—and got clean away with it." He squatted on the ground at the planter's feet. "Shall I tell you what Hyde's doing something I don't quite understand about all this. Lai-Ho could have poisoned us both at dinner, if he'd wanted."

Hyde glanced up from filling his briar.

"Of course he could. He cooked the stuff. What then?"

"Then why all that elaborate paraphernalia of the Yellow Seven and the knife and knockin' out the lamp?" He laughed aloud. "Hyde, old son, we've been duped!"

"Eh?"

"We were meant to follow them." The planter was struggling with a match.

THE YELLOW SEVEN ISLAND "N"

BY EDMUND SKEEL.

NEA SERVICE INC. 1923

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Peter Pennington is detailed by the government to capture Chai-Hung, leader of The Yellow Seven, a gang of Chinese bandits. Pennington is in love with Monica Viney, widowed sister of Captain John Hewitt, Commissioner of Police at Jesselton, British North Borneo. Disguised as a Chinese, Peter calls on Hyde, a planter, to warn him against the bandits. Pennington meets Dora Bateson, daughter of Hyde, and tells her to beware if she receives a fan for a gift.

NOW GO WITH THE STORY

"Not in the least," he retorted smiling. "I like a woman to smoke—if she cares for it."

"And yet you're old-fashioned enough to disapprove of women riding alone?"

Before Pennington could reply, the planter had hooked down his hat and was making for the steps.

"I'll leave you two to settle this interesting dispute for yourselves," he laughed. "I'm off to see that none of my soundrels are shirking. You'll be here when I come back, of course? We can afford to have Mr. Chai-Hung keeping you on tenterhooks a little longer—so that we can keep you with us. One last word of warning, Pennington. Never let Dora draw you into an argument, if you can avoid it!"

He winked broadly and went down the path to where a watchman waited with his mount.

He was out of sight when the girl spoke.

"I fancy I'm beginning to understand. Is it because of this Chai-Hung that you didn't want me to ride alone?"

The other nodded.

The boy who had come in noiselessly and was in the act of clearing the breakfast things, dropped the tray on to the table from which he had just lifted it.

Pennington sprang erect.

"You mustn't mind Lai-Ho," said Dora. "He's not been with us very long, and he's frightfully careless."

"He struck me as being a little peculiar," returned Pennington. "That he should display his clumsiness at the moment when you mentioned Chai-Hung?"

The girl's forehead wrinkled.

"Aren't you rather an uncomfortable sort of person to know? We've never had the slightest suspicion of trouble up here, before you came. Now we shall all be looking under our beds and behind curtains—hunting for Chinese bandits! I suppose Chai-Hung, does exist? To be perfectly frank, we'd like to see the commission of Police to keep us on the alert."

Pennington crossed the floor and leant his back against the rail.

"I'm afraid I must disillusion you, Mrs. Bateson. Chai-Hung, unfortunately, is very much in existence just at this moment, and I can exactly explain to you your portion of this island should be so singularly immune from the attentions of his gang."

"I want you to understand that it is more by accident than design that he has left you alone. This state of security cannot last. You're living in a fool's paradise and one of these days somebody or other'll wake up with a nasty jar! I don't want to be you, Mrs. Bateson. That's precisely why I'm up against these early-morning excursions through the jungle."

Dora jammed on her sun-helmet and rose from the chair.

"You must run across and meet my husband," she said. "Do you really want me to cut these rides?"

Pennington passed a finger between his lips and said:

"Keep within the estate boundaries for a month. I'll try not to make it more—and keep your eyes open."

"What am I to look for?" inquired Dora innocently.

"A Chinese playing-card with a yellow face and which seven black dots are printed. If ever you should hear of one of these, send for me at once. If there's nobody to send—come to me yourself."

"Is that all?"

He followed her to the top of the short flight.

"Just one other thing. If a Chinaman should offer you a fan, accept it without comment. It will be in a silk case. On no account remove that case. Bring it to me, as it is."

She held out a slim hand.

"You don't explain very clearly why a fan should be offered to me?"

"It's merely a supposition on my part, based on two things. The first being that, unless my calculations are sadly at fault, our oriental friend has chosen this territory for his next area of operations."

"And the second?"

Pennington smiled queerly.

"There have already been two recipients of these fans in Borneo," he said, "and both of them were singularly beautiful women!"

It was toward the end of the second week of Pennington's stay at Hyde's bungalow that he began to display signs of impatience. In desperation, he cast around for some tangible clue that might serve to assist him in his quest, and he remembered the fan that had been offered to him by the servant who had dropped the tray.

There was a certain amount of sickness in Hyde's colic-lines and, for that reason, Lai-Ho had been told-off to attend to the wants of both the genial planter and his guest, an arrangement which—if it were not altogether agreeable to the Chinaman—gave Pennington ample opportunity of observing closely the man through whom he vaguely hoped to trace Chai-Hung.

They were sitting one evening over their after-dinner cigars, when Hyde, who was groping for something in a trouser pocket, uttered a muffled exclamation and withdrew his hand. The thing that he held between finger and thumb fluttered to the cloth and both men, springing to their feet bent in

AT THE MOVIES

THE ELTINGE
From the grandeur of the Court of Louis X in "The Eternal Flame" and the enchantment of the turreted East in Robert Hichens' "The Voice From the Minaret" to the underworld of New York City may seem a long step for any motion picture star, but the versatile Norma Talmadge makes it with her latest drama, "Within the Law," one of the most powerful plays ever brought to the screen.

THE ELTINGE

As Mary Turner, the little shop girl around whom Bayard Vellier wrote his tremendously successful stage production, Miss Talmadge is said to perform the finest emotional work of her career.
Some of the strongest scenes are enacted in the courtroom and in prison when Mary Turner, a shop girl is convicted and sentenced for a theft of which she is not guilty. Because of her record and police persecution, Mary is unable to find respectable employment on her release, and it is this circumstance that sends her into a band of blackmailers and brings about an extraordinary romance.

AT THE MOVIES

CAPITOL

The West! Its call of adventure is ever new, always appealing. At the Capitol last night began a two day run of the Fox production, "Brass Commandments," starring William Farnum. The story is replete with rousing action that makes a pleasing screen entertainment. Farnum contributes a dramatic portrayal far above the ordinary. Harking back to one of the screen classics of other days we find him giving heroic battle to the villain of the film realm. Tom Santachi. Again in Brass Commandments these two go at it hammer and tongs to the delight of the youngsters in the audience and, let it be whispered, to the equal enjoyment of many grownups. When the battle clouds clear away all is serene viewing the scenery with Wanda Hawley. When it comes to natural beauty Miss Hawley should not be overlooked. She has talent as well as looks. Claire Adams comes in for a share of praise for her work in the photoplay. Others in the cast are Charles LeMoine, Lon Poff and Al Fremont.

THE ELTINGE

From the grandeur of the Court of Louis X in "The Eternal Flame" and the enchantment of the turreted East in Robert Hichens' "The Voice From the Minaret" to the underworld of New York City may seem a long step for any motion picture star, but the versatile Norma Talmadge makes it with her latest drama, "Within the Law," one of the most powerful plays ever brought to the screen.

THE ELTINGE

As Mary Turner, the little shop girl around whom Bayard Veiller wrote his tremendously successful stage production, Miss Talmadge is said to perform the finest emotional work of her career.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
 (Established 1873)

THE TASK BEFORE HIM

Yet in the midst of its grief over the loss of its chief executive, the nation turns a thought to the new President, his character and ability. For life must go on. The nation must be governed.

Calvin Coolidge assumes a great task. With the nation still in its period of adjustment from war conditions he takes the helm to remain in office, unless re-elected, for nineteen months. He received votes for the nomination for the Presidency in the Republican convention of 1920; many believed he was the strong man that should fill the President's chair, and fate has decreed that the judgment of these few shall be tested.

Calvin Coolidge has not occupied the public eye to any great extent for two and one-half years. He has accepted calmly the obscurity that attaches to the Vice-Presidency. He has been publicly discussed for his stand during the Boston policemen's strike while Governor of Massachusetts—and he has been criticized for his cold serenity.

He came from the farm and knows the hard labor involved in seeking a livelihood from Vermont soil. He labored diligently at college and as hard in a law office in Northampton, Massachusetts. He filled various lesser offices in his city and in the state legislature, was elected Governor in 1918 and reelected in 1919.

His opponents attacked his attitude in the policemen's strike as anti-labor. Yet while a candidate for Governor his platform included reduction of working hours for women and minors, increase in the compensation law allowance, a state soldiers' bonus. His record is not that of one who might be classed as anti-labor. Rather, as he stated, "Our case shall be law and order."

Tactful even as a boy, quiet and dignified, he does not appear to possess the great warmth of soul which won men so steadfastly to Warren G. Harding. Yet The Tribune's biographer yesterday told us that while Governor of Massachusetts his quiet manner, his apparent great reserve power made him an outstanding figure in all deliberations.

He is modest in habits. When elected to the Vice-Presidency he still kept the small rented house to which he took his bride.

Mr. Coolidge has had admirable training in the science of government, and his firm powers of decision, his undoubted probity and his firm sense of righteousness are admirable qualities. He may prove that a beaming face is not necessary to express the deepest feeling for his fellow men. He will carry with him to the Presidency the heart-felt wishes of the nation that he may succeed in the great task before him.

SUN-STROKE

It begins to look as if 1923 is going to be an exceptionally big year for heat prostrations and sun-stroke. The death rate by heat varies in different years a lot more than you'd imagine. In the last 12 years, fatal heat prostrations were 33 times as numerous in one year as in another. This is revealed by records of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. In 1920 only one insurance policy holder in 500,000 died of heat prostration.

In 1911 the rate was 33 in every 500,000.

The national death rate from sun stroke, of course, runs much higher, for these figures are based on insurance policy holders, most of whom are matured, and do not take into account infants, who are particularly susceptible to death by heat.

Negroes are more subject to death by sun-stroke than are white people. No one ever has been able to explain this satisfactorily. Logically the negro should be able to withstand more punishment from the sun, for his African ancestors must have developed and passed on to him a high sense of immunity to sun's heat and humidity.

The African hunts in the jungle, but generally, lives in the shade.

The explanation: The white man is more cautious, takes better care of himself, and thereby is more immune from heat prostration than the negro is by natural inheritance.

The highest death rates from heat are not, as might be supposed, in the hot southern states. As far north as Michigan and Wisconsin the sun-stroke rate is far above average.

In the south, they get used to it. And, possessing a more accurate realization of sun-stroke dangers, the southerner is more careful than the northerner.

As most mothers know, babies are very subject to heat prostration and should be watched and protected with extreme care during hot or humid weather.

Even greater care should be exercised in the case of elderly people, for almost half of the deaths from heat and sun-stroke are those of persons above 50 years of age.

If you cannot avoid being exposed to the sun for long periods during heat waves, fresh green leaves inside your hat will help remarkably at keeping you cool.

WINE

France checks up and finds that last year she produced 50 per cent more wine than in 1913. Using the same years for comparison, the export of French wines decreased 65 per cent in value, despite increase in prices.

And the excess is not all being stored, by any means. The French ministry of agriculture issues a proclamation "viewing with alarm the increased use of alcoholic drinks among the French."

Europe has its own prohibition problem without worrying about ours.

LAWING

A father sues his son for a million dollars in Providence, R. I. Pa. claims he turned the money over to son for investment and son has failed to keep up the income payments as agreed. An unusual case. Maybe the psychologists can explain why you would be less surprised if a son were suing his father.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not reflect the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have a side of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

WARREN G. HARDING

President Warren G. Harding is dead and a Nation mourns.

Just at a time when his Country-men were reassured that his illness would soon pass and that he would again step forth, in all his vigor, to carry on during these days of reconstruction, his voice is stilled and his hand stayed by the Angel of Death.

The loss to America is irreparable because he was a great man and a great Executive. It did not fall to his lot to be the head of the Nation during the troublous days of war, but to him probably had been entrusted a more difficult task—that of placing his Country on a peaceful basis following the most terrible conflict in the history of the World.

With a full realization of the responsibility he accepted the call of a people to service. With calm and sound judgment, with an abiding faith in Him who rules the Universe, he undertook to point the path along which America must tread if she was to enjoy the fruition of her hopes.

The story of how well he builded must be left to history, but it is certain that history will accord him a high place among American Presidents.

His work was only begun. The foundation, however, had been laid with care, and upon that foundation, had his life been spared, he would have placed his achievements in a permanent structure. The work must now be left to others, but it will be easier because of his foresight, his optimism, his counsel.

His death is the penalty he has paid for his devotion to duty and his love for his Country. But few know how hard he has worked, what application he has been compelled to give to the great problems that were before him. The trip to Alaska which has ended so tragically, weakened his already none too rugged constitution to a point where it could not withstand disease.

He died in service. If he could have chosen the manner of his passing, that would have been the way he would have desired to go.

Warren G. Harding, the man, is dead, but Warren G. Harding lives in memory, and that memory will continue to live in the minds and hearts of the American people.—Farizo Forum.

The Tangle

LETTER FROM SYDNEY CARTON TO JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT.

I have been wondering, old chap, if I had better write you this letter. You may be sure that I would have come over and told what I am going to say to you if I could possibly have gotten away, but the Strathmore case comes up tomorrow and I must be in court. I think, however, you should know immediately what I am going to tell you.

Paula Perier came to town yesterday and sent for me to come over to the hotel. First I thought I would not go, as it seemed to me that the Perier episode was a chapter in your life that should be closed. However, she got me on the phone and begged me to come.

"The last time, it is, monsieur, that you will see Paula," she said in her queer little idiom, "and for all concerned, thinking I am, there are necessary some explanations."

Her voice was trembling, Jack, and I really felt sorry for her. I told her I would come over. "For Madame Perier you must ask," she said, "for I have with me 'Penfant'."

I arrived at the hotel and was shown up to Paula's room. Jack, you wouldn't know her. She has grown thin and pale. She has lost much of her vivacity, but she has gained immeasurably in a kind of madonna-like beauty. She seems all eyes and pathetic smile. I am sure she is going to make a great hit on the screen in a certain type of picture. She told me that she already had an offer from one of the big directors to take a small part in his next picture. "He is French, you know," she said, "and I think he first became interested in me because I spoke the language. At the house of a mutual friend I met him."

And then, Jack, she asked about you. "Is he well—is he happy?" she asked tremulously.

"No, he is not very happy just at present, Paula," I answered. And then I told her about Leslie.

Jack, I never liked Paula Perier as well as I did while she was listening to Leslie's unhappy story. "Poor, poor woman," she said. "It is I who know. It is I who sympathy can give, for through it all I have gone." And then without any embarrassment whatever she said, "My baby—would you like to see him?"

With that she went into the other room and brought out a little bundle of flannel and lace, and I swear to you, Jack, that she held it to her breast she looked like the type that all of us conceive when we think of "Mother"—a mother with her first-born. She pulled the little shawl away from the face of the child and I fairly gasped—for in his sleep that baby pulled down one corner of his mouth and wrinkled up his nose in exactly the same way you do, Jack. It was uncanny.

"Sweet, is he not?" she asked.

Instead of answering, I questioned. "What are you going to do with him? Surely you are not going to take him out to Hollywood with you, are you?"

"But yes, with him I can do nothing else, and he is my baby—just mine alone. I do not have to answer to any one for him but Le Bon Dieu."

I could not help wondering, Jack, if you would have to answer to some good God, or some malignant devil, for that little helpless bit of humanity. If you ever saw him you could not deny him. And yet I do not think that Paula wants you even to acknowledge him, for when I asked her what she was going to call him she answered, "Paul Perier."

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

"The first person I wish you would look for," said King Snookums to the Twins, "is my lord high chancellor. His name is Coder. Mister Lord High Chancellor Coder. Like the rest of my silly subjects, he got the craze for hiding lightning bugs. And now he's plumb disappeared. We can't find him anywhere in Fee Wee Land. And I need him badly as I have to make a new law and need him to write it out for me."

"Oh, we'll find him never fear," comforted Nancy. "Can you tell us anything about him that might help?"

King Snookums pushed his crown from one side to the other and pushed it back again.

"Nothing much!" he said. "All that I know is that he had a sweet tooth in his head. No! Two sweet teeth, or perhaps three. I greatly fear it has been his undoing."

"All right," said Nick. "We'll find him. With our magic shoes we can go anywhere, and we'll hunt in all the kitchens and pantries, and cake boxes and pastry shops and candy stores."

Away they went then and it wasn't two minutes till they came to Mrs. Thingumadagger's house.

Mrs. Thingumadagger had been baking. Anyone could in four blocks tell that. Such a smell you never smelled.

So the Twins went straight for her pantry shelf.

And there stood a large cake with white icing and a lump in the middle.

"Help! Help!" the lump was calling and moving over so little. "The lump had got hard and I can't get out! Help!"

Sure enough, it was the lord high chancellor of Fee Wee Land.

The Twins got him out of that and hustled him home in a jiffy.

HOLD VIOLATOR OF PISTOL LAW

Grand Forks, Aug. 4.—The first instance of a person in this section of the state being charged with the violation of the pistol and revolver laws (Senate Bill No. 256), passed by the North Dakota legislature at its last session, will be the case of Clarence Moline, arrested by local police officers Monday night in a raid on a house located on the lower end of Cottonwood street. At that time two .38 calibre revolvers and a .12 gauge shot gun were found, it is claimed, in a Studebaker touring car belonging to Moline, which was parked near the house.

Moline, who is scheduled to get his hearing Wednesday, will be charged with the violation of Article 6 of the law, which is relative to the carrying of concealed pistols. The law reads: "No person shall carry a pistol or revolver concealed in any vehicle or in any package, satchel, grip, suit case, or carry in any way or upon his person, except in his dwelling house or place of business, without a license therefor as hereinafter provided. Violation of this section shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than one year, and upon conviction the pistol or revolver shall be confiscated or destroyed."

Moline was sitting one evening over their after-dinner cigars, when Hyde, who was groping for something in a trouser pocket, uttered a muffled exclamation and withdrew his hand. The thing that he held between finger and thumb fluttered to the cloth and both men, springing to their feet bent in speechless amazement over a Chinese playing-

THE YELLOW SEVEN

ISLAND "N"

BEHIND SHILL.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Peter Pennington is dunned by the government to capture Chai-Hung, leader of The Yellow Seven, a gang of Chinese bandits. Pennington is in love with Monica Vinay, widow sister of Captain John Hewitt, Commissioner of Police at Jesselton, British North Borneo. Disguised as a Chinese, Peter calls on Hyde, a planter, to turn him against the bandits. Pennington meets Dora Bateson, daughter of Hyde, and tells her to beware if she receives a fan for a gift.

NOW GO WITH THE STORY

"Not, in the least," he retorted, smiling. "I like a woman to smoke—if she cares for it."

"And yet you're old-fashioned enough to disapprove of women riding alone?"

Before Pennington could reply, the planter hooked down his hat and was making for the steps.

"I'll leave you two to settle this interesting dispute for yourselves," he laughed. "I'm off to see that none of my secondaries are shiffling. You'll be here when I come back, of course? We can afford to have Mr. Chai-Hung keeping you on tenterhooks a little longer—so that we can keep you with us. One last word of warning, Pennington. Never let Dora draw you into an argument, if you can avoid it."

He winked broadly and went down the path to where a watchman waited with his mount.

He was out of sight when the girl spoke.

"I fancy I'm beginning to understand. Is it because of this Chai-Hung that you didn't want me to ride alone?"

The other nodded.

The boy who had come in noiselessly and was in the act of clearing the breakfast things, dropped the tray on to the table from which he had just lifted it.

Pennington sprang erect.

"You mustn't mind Lai-Ho," said Dora. "He's not been with us very long, and he's frightfully careless. It struck me as being a little peculiar—his dress—Pennington—that he should display his clumsiness at the moment when you mentioned Chai-Hung."

The girl's forehead wrinkled.

"Aren't you rather an uncomfortable sort of person to know? We've never had the slightest suspicion of trouble up here, before you came. Now we shall all be looking under our beds and behind curtains—hunting for Chinese bandits! I suppose you're afraid, does that?" To be perfectly frank, Peter, the conclusion he was a myth invented by the Commissioner of Police to keep us on the alert."

Pennington crossed the floor and leant his back against the rail.

"I'm afraid I must disillusion you, Mrs. Bateson. Chai-Hung, unfortunately, is very much in existence just at this moment. I can't exactly explain to you why your portion of this island should be so singularly immune from the attentions of his gang." He extended a warning finger. "I want you to understand that it is more by accident than design that he has left you alone. This state of security cannot last. You're living in a fool's paradise and one of these days somebody or other'll wake up with a nasty jar! I don't want to be you, Mrs. Bateson. That's precisely why I'm up against these early-morning excursions through the jungle."

Dora jammed on her sun-helmet and rose from the chair.

"You must run across and meet my husband," she said. "Do you really want me to cut these rides?"

Pennington passed a finger between his tunic-collar and his neck.

"Keep within the estate boundaries for one month. I'll not to make it more—and keep your eyes open."

"What am I to look for?" inquired Dora innocently.

"A Chinese playing-card with a yellow face upon which seven black dots are printed. If ever you should hear of one of these, send for me at once. If there's nobody to send—come to me yourself."

He that all?"

He followed her to the top of the short flight.

"Just one other thing. If a Chinaman should offer you a fan, accept it without comment. It will be in a silk case. On no account remove that case. Bring it to me, as it is."

She held out a slim hand.

"You don't explain very clearly why a fan should be offered to me!"

"It's merely a supposition on my part, based on two things. The first is that, using that calculation, we are early at fault, our mental friend has chosen this territory for his next area of operations."

The girl started.

Pennington smiled queerly.

"There have already been two recipients of these fans in Borneo," he said, "and both of them were singularly beautiful women!"

It was toward the end of the second week of Pennington's stay at Hyde's bungalow that he began to display signs of impatience. In desperation, he cast around for some tangible clue that might serve to assist him in his search for Chai-Hung—and his eye fell upon Lai-Ho, the servant who had dropped the tray.

There was a certain amount of sickness in Hyde's coffee-lines and, for that reason, Lai-Ho had been told-off to attend to the wants of both the genial planter and his guest, an arrangement which—if it were not altogether agreeable to the Chinaman—gave Pennington ample opportunity of observing closely the man through whom he vaguely hoped to trace Chai-Hung.

They were sitting one evening over their after-dinner cigars, when Hyde, who was groping for something in a trouser pocket, uttered a muffled exclamation and withdrew his hand. The thing that he held between finger and thumb fluttered to the cloth and both men, springing to their feet bent in speechless amazement over a Chinese playing-card. The black back of the thing lay uppermost and Pennington turned it over with his nail.

It was Hyde who broke the silence. "The Yellow Seven!" he muttered hoarsely. "I wonder—"

Before he could complete the sentence, Pennington had wrenched open the door, sending Lai-Ho, who had been listening on the other side, matching forward on his face. Something shot from the region of his waist and rolled to the planter's feet. It was knife with a long, thin blade and a handle of buffalo-horn.

Hyde stooped to pick it up and Pennington, his hands resting lightly on his hips, surveyed the protrude oriental with interest.

"Get up, my friend," he advised him coldly. "There are many questions I would like to ask you." He pointed to the card which still lay on the table. "Who gave you that Yellow-Seven?"

Lai-Ho scrambled to his feet and backed toward the doorway, his eyes blazing fury. Suddenly, as Pennington sought to intercept him, the entire expression of the swarthy features changed and the Englishman realised that Lai-Ho was looking beyond him. At the same moment, a cry from Hyde brought Pennington round on his heel in time to see a bamboo pole, propelled from without shatter the lamp-glass and plunge the room into darkness.

The faint light from a match the planter held shaded between his fingers was sufficient to assure them that Lai-Ho had disappeared.

"What are you going to do?" demanded Hyde, striking two together and mounting a chair.

Pennington had already reached the veranda-rail and was peering into the blackness of the tropic night.

"Follow, old son!" he shouted back over his shoulder. "Follow for all I'm worth!"

He vaulted lightly to the soft earth below, and the planter, relinquishing his attempt to re-light the lamp, joined him.

"Seen anything?"

The other nodded.

"There were two of 'em. They were making for the bottom of the slope. Are you coming?"

"Most certainly. It's ages since I had any excitement to speak of."

"I fancy I can promise you some," returned Pennington grimly. "Come on."

On the open ground between the two they entered a Sikh watchman who had just passed two men making for Bateson's side of the plantation. He had noticed that they were breathless with running, and he thought one of them was the manager's servant.

Presently they were in the open padi-lands, the incessant droning of insects in their ears, and the two figures clearly visible a bare quarter-of-a-mile distant. Pennington was forging ahead at such a pace that the planter found it difficult to keep up with him. In twenty minutes they had halved the distance that stretched between them and their quarry. Half-an-hour later—and Hyde had recognized Lai-Ho. He saw the white patch of his face as he glanced apprehensively back, and then he lost both of them in a belt of trees that rose like an oasis in a desert of sand. Pennington made a sudden spurt forward and vanished, too. On the other side of the tree the planter emerged alone to discover nothing but moon-light and still more padi-land. Wondering greatly, he sank into a sitting position on a fallen log, and felt for his pipe. A voice came to him from the darkness.

"Hyde! Where are you?"

"Here, where am I?"

"In the proverbial soup," returned Pennington, dropping from a bough. "They've split company—and got clean away with it." He squatted on the ground at the planter's feet. "Shall I tell you what, Hyde? There's something I don't quite understand about all this. Lai-Ho could have poisoned us both at dinner, if he'd wanted."

Hyde glanced up from filling his pipe.

"Of course he could. He cooked the stuff. What then?"

"Then why all this elaborate paraphernalia of the Yellow Seven and the knife and knookin' out the lamp?" He laughed aloud. "Hyde, old son, we've been duped!"

"Ruh?"

"We were meant to follow them." The planter was struggling with a match.

KNAUF SIGNS TO BOX KRAUSE

Fargo, Aug. 4.—Johnny Knauf, Moorhead's hard hitting welterweight, put his signature on the contract calling for an eight round engagement at Wahpeton on Aug. 15 with Battling Krause, the Hazen mauler.

Promoter Jack Hurley announced that Knauf's contract stipulates that the weight shall be 145 pounds at 3 p. m. on the day of the fight, and that the Moorhead battler will receive $200 for his services. Knauf refused to sign until assured that he shall have an equal say in the selection of the referee.

GUN CLUB TO SHOOT SUNDAY

The Bismarck Gun Club will hold a shoot Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock on the Country club grounds.

Puzzling Plays

THE PLAY

Here is a new play involving the coach.

With a runner on first, the batsman hits to the third baseman, who fumbles the ball, and seeing he has no chance to make a play at second, hurries his throw to get the man at first. The throw is bad and bounds off the first baseman's glove.

The coach gets in front of the ball so that he deflects it into the home team's dugout. Under the rules a thrown ball that goes into the dugout entitles everybody to advance two bases.

The umpire thought the coach intentionally interfered with the throw, the runners, under the rules, were compelled to stop at the base last touched by them.

Instead of permitting the runner on first to go to third and the batter to second, since the overthrow went into the dugout, which ordinarily entitles all runners to advance two bases, the runner on first should be held at second and the batter at first.

THE INTERPRETATION

Since the umpire thought the coach intentionally interfered with the throw, the runners, under the rules, were compelled to stop at the base last touched by them.

Instead of permitting the runner on first to go to third and the batter to second, since the overthrow went into the dugout, which ordinarily entitles all runners to advance two bases, the runner on first should be held at second and the batter at first.

The coach, for his offense, is penalized by being removed from the playing field.

Kinks o' the Links

Where did Bobby Jones finish in the national open last year and what was his score?

Jones finished in a tie for second place last year at Skokie with a score of 289. The veteran pro, John Black, shared the position with the youthful amateur. "Sarazen won with a score of 288, so that Jones and Black were just a stroke removed from the title in 1922.

Smith's caddy, on all the greens in a match with Jones, indicated the line of Smith's putts with a club and held the club in position while Smith putted. The club held by Smith's caddy did not touch the ground but unquestionably was of great aid to Smith in his putting. Was Smith within his rights in having his caddy indicate the line of putt?

Smith was in error and should suffer a two-stroke penalty for each violation. It is merely permissible to point out the direction for putting before the stroke is made. This disputed point is covered by section 1 of rule 29.

A is playing B and giving him one stroke a hole. They both score a five on a certain hole in which A had the honor. Since each scored a five does A retain the honor at the next tee?

Although each made a five on the hole, B won the hole since A was giving him a one-stroke handicap.

Mays, Hero of '21 Series, About to Leave Big Show

By NEA Service

New York, Aug. 4.—Carl Mays, pitching hero of the 1921 world series, is almost at the end of his career as a big leaguer.

A hero two years ago and a bench warmer today, lucky to start a game!

That sums up the story of Carl Mays.

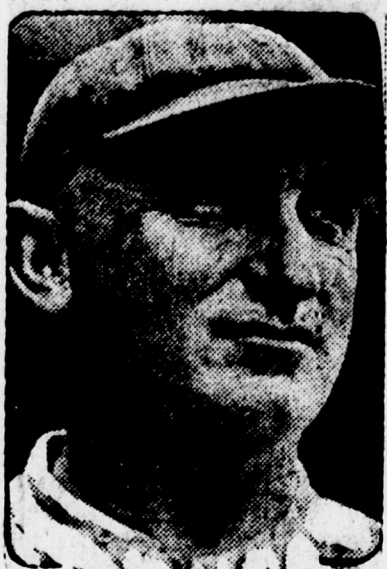

Mays' fate simply proves that baseball is a mighty fickle playmate.

Last year the Yankees asked for waivers on Mays. It was intended to send him to the Pacific Coast League in a deal for Pitcher Jake May. All the major league clubs waived except the Cincinnati Reds.

Failure of the Reds to waive, alone prevented Mays from being shunted to the minors last winter. That is almost certain to be his fate before the opening of next season.

This year finishes Mays' three-year contract calling for $15,000 a year. Right now Carl is getting his money for acting as bench warmer and occasional relief pitcher.

During the recent series with Cleveland Manager Huggins, because of injuries to several members of his pitching staff, was forced to start Mays. That game just about sounded the finish of his career as a big league star.

Cleveland won, 13 to 0, pounding Mays for 20 hits, many of them for extra bases.

Fohl Likely to Move Over Boston Way in Spring

By NEA Service

Boston, Aug. 4.—Opening of the 1924 season is almost sure to find Lee Fohl, now manager of the St. Louis Browns, at the head of his third major league club.

He is regarded now as the certain successor of Frank Chance, Red Sox pilot. Chance was signed only on a one-year contract when President Frazee brought him back from retirement.

Fohl started his major league career as manager of the Cleveland club. He met with excellent success considering the material he had to work with. Tris Speaker, brilliant outfielder, succeeded him.

From Cleveland, Lee went to St. Louis. Last year he came within a single game of winning the American League pennant, with a team that was not without its weak spots.

Bobby Quinn, new president of the Red Sox, who took Fohl to St. Louis, will bring him to Boston, say the wise boys.

And George Sisler probably will replace Fohl at the Browns' helm.

Fohl lacks fire and is seldom in the spotlight, but he's a plodder who never stops trying until he has his club working its very best.

Under him, if Fohl gets the appointment, Boston ought to see better things in baseball.

Looks Like "Battle of the Ages" When Dempsey and "Wild Bull" Meet

BY BOB DORMAN.

NEA Service Writer.

New York, Aug. 4.—When an irresistible force meets an irresistible force, what is going to happen?

That is the interesting problem that probably will be settled soon, when Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, meets Louis Firpo, who, in the short space of one year, has fought himself into the front rank of the contenders for Jack's title.

A rushing attack that crushes everything in its way; a terrific punching ability that batters down everything that opposes it; a natural fighting instinct that takes the place of gymnastic taught skill; a joy in combat and a dogged determination that has but one object, the bringing down of the luckless mortal tossed into the same ring with them—these are the outstanding characteristics of the two fighters whom fate has seen fit to make contemporaries.

Dempsey More Skillful.

Dempsey has the more skill. In his own awkward way he is the better boxer of the two. He is also a shade faster in the ring.

His more extensive experience in the ring, the confidence he goes with the knowledge that he is the world's champion, all combine to give him an advantage that would be hard for the "Bull of the Pampas" to overcome.

That of course entitles B to the honor on the next tee.

Is there a penalty if a player's ball strikes a flag stick which has been permitted to remain in the hole?

There is no penalty if a player's ball strikes the flag stick while it is in the hole, regardless of the distance the ball is played from.

Want To Hear A Hard Luck Story?

Listen To Pete Donahue's Tale of Woe As College Pitcher

BY BILLY EVANS.

Pete Donahue of the Cincinnati Reds stand out as one of the most unusual players to ever break into the major leagues.

Donahue came direct to the big show from a Texas college team and made good right off the reel. His case is a decided exception to the rule.

This spring at Orlando, Fla., while watching the Reds in training I had a good chance to give Donahue the once over. One day, while he was pitching to the batters, I remarked to Manager Morgan who was talking to me:

"That fellow Donahue reminds me of Mathewson in so many ways. He has that free motion of Matty's and works without the slightest effort."

Made Good From Start.

Here's a wonderful pitcher and just as fine a boy," answered the Cincinnati manager. "Donahue is come, were it not for his peculiar mentality.

Luis Angel Firpo feels that he is destined to become the world's heavyweight champion. That through the possession of the title he is to become a rich man. That was the vision that came to him as he climbed the Andes in South America as he set forth to his first fight.

That feeling has never left him throughout his career in the ring. It is the secret of the quiet business-like way he fights in the ring. It is the secret of the never-changing expression that carves his face into a granite mask, a mask unaffected by pain or joy, success or failure.

Real Pugilistic Classic.

It's uncanny, that expression. The crashing impact of the mighty Willard's ponderous fist brought no change.

The sight of the fallen giant, brought to his knees by the power of Firpo's own driving fists, left that expression unchanged.

It is the same brooding look that Napoleon, "The Man of Destiny," wore.

To Firpo, Dempsey is nothing more than the last obstacle in the way of the fulfillment of that vision of the heights that he had when he climbed the Andes a few short years ago.

If the Dempsey-Carpenter fight was "the battle of a century," the Dempsey-Firpo fight should be "the battle of the ages."

one of the greatest pitchers I have ever seen and the strange part of it, he was a finished big leaguer when he joined my club.

"When a pitcher comes to you direct from some college, no matter how much natural ability he may have, you figure he will need at least a year's experience to polish him up. He must learn to watch the runners. Then he must change his style to suit various situations. He must learn his batters, also a score of other things."

"Donahue seemed to know all those things when he joined the Reds. He had the ability and poise of a big leaguer. He knew how to pitch from the very start."

There you have a picture of Pete Donahue as a big leaguer, as painted by his manager. He is one of the pitching stars of the major leagues.

Good Old College Days.

What about his college days as a pitcher? Recently I had a chat with a Texan who was familiar with Donahue as a collegian and he related many unusual and strange things about the Cincinnati star.

Would you believe it possible for a college pitcher to work eight no-hit games during his career and lose seven of them?

No! Well that is just what happened to Pete Donahue as a collegian. Seems as though that would have been enough to have made Donahue quit the game in disgust instead of inspiring him to win fame as a big leaguer.

Donahue's college record in baseball is without a parallel.

Losses Seven No-Hit Games.

GUNTHER OF MINOT LEADS HITTERS OF NORTH DAKOTA STATE LEAGUE IN SECOND HALF OF THE SEASON

Gunther, Minot second baseman, is the real leader of the North Dakota state league in batting for the second half of the season, according to averages released today by L. W. Upshaw, secretary of the league, for games up to and including those played Sunday, July 29th. The Minot star is batting .473. Bismarck players have fallen down in hitting for the second half of the season. Reid and Zimmerman are the only two in the .300 class, the former having .333 and the latter .311.

Batting averages (abbreviations at top of column are: Ab—at bat, R—runs, H—hits, 2b—two-base hits, 3b—three-base hits, HR—home runs; SI—sacrifice hits, BB—base on balls, SB—stolen base, SO—struck out) are as follows:

What's Going on in The World

BY CHARLES P. STEWART.
NEA Service Writer.

The German mark, once worth nearly a quarter in American money, fell so low last week that $1 would buy about a million.

That is, a man worth $500,000 in German money when the war started has $2 now. On what this does to bank accounts, trade and wages, it's needless to dwell. Of course, wages have risen considerably. Still, for a skilled worker, $12 counts as a fair month's pay. Besides, business is so disorganized that unemployment's rife.

The point is that before the war, German money seemed as sound as American money does now. Maybe it's ridiculous to suggest that what's happened in Germany could happen in the United States, but that's what the Germans thought, too.

To reduce it to terms of practical politics, suppose somebody who favors a radical change in America's monetary system should get into power, put his plan into effect, and it didn't work out as expected? Presidential possibilities are mentioned, from time to time, who have such schemes.

that the latter haven't abandoned hope of the Japanese yet. He concluded by forecasting another great war soon; therefore urged that the countries, which outside pressure has forced together, come to terms among themselves at once.

TURKEY SCORES VICTORY.
Turkey, in conference with the great powers at Lausanne, has forced England, France, Italy, Japan, Greece and Rumania, to most of her conditions. Ex-Premier Lloyd George says it's the most humiliating treaty England ever signed. Jugo-Slavia refused but probably will have to sign later. America and Turkey are making a separate pact.

When the Turks joined the Germans in the war the allies swore they'd drive the sultan out of Europe. Now what?

Turkey's stronger than she's been in centuries. She escapes the war penalties the allies tried to impose. She gets Constantinople back, and eastern Thrace. Foreign troops must leave her soil. She evicts Greek civilians. She makes no promises concerning the Armenians. She ends extra-territoriality within her frontiers. She opens the Bosphorus and Dardanelles to such shipping as she chooses to let pass. She joins the League of Nations on equal terms with everybody else.

PHILIPPINES ARE ANGRY.
Declaring General Leonard Wood temperately unfitted to govern "in a democratic manner," the legislature at Manila has demanded his recall. Governor-general of the Philippines.

It's a renewal of the islands' campaign for self-government. Woodrow Wilson urged it. Wood, in his first report as governor-general, expressed the opinion that the Philippines aren't capable yet of managing their own affairs. Naturally he's disliked by the pro-independence group.

WETS AND DRIES.
When the revenue cutter Seminole, scouting for rum runners off New York, approached uncomfortably close to the British schooner Thorn-dyke, outside America's 3-mile limit, the Thornydyke's captain threatened to open fire.

The Seminole commander's superiors ordered him later, if any suspected ship should do this, to return the shots.

A fight on the high seas, where the liquor sleuths' jurisdiction doesn't run, between a United States government vessel and one under a foreign flag would be very serious indeed.

The Seminole's commander reported the liquor fleet stretching the length of a 35-mile line, just beyond the 3-mile limit, outside New York, with many countries represented.

W. H. Anderson, indicted New York superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, having said he used a large part of the money he won't otherwise account for, to bribe newspaper men, the New York press is bringing strong pressure for a special legislative session to investigate the League's methods thoroughly.

ENDING 12-HOUR DAY.
The United States Steel Corporation is fixing to abandon the 12-hour day for its workers. Judge E. H. Gary, the corporation's chairman, recently said this couldn't be done at present, but public opinion was too much for him.

KNAUF SIGNS TO BOX KRAUSE

Fargo, Aug. 4.—Johnny Knauf, Monmouth's hard hitting welterweight, put his signature on the contract calling for an eight round engagement at Wahpeton on Aug. 15 with Battling Krause, the Hazen mauler.

Promoter Jack Hurley announced that Knauf's contract stipulates that the weight shall be 145 pounds at 3 p. m., on the day of the fight, and that the Monmouth fighter will receive $300 for his services. Knauf refused to sign until assured that he shall have an equal say in the selection of the referee.

The Bismarck Gun Club will hold a shoot Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock on the Country club grounds.

Puzzling Plays

THE PLAY

Here is a new play involving the coach.

With a runner on first, the batsman hits to the third baseman, who fumbles the ball, and, seeing he has no chance to make a play at second, hurries his throw to get the man at first. The throw is bad and bounds off the first baseman's glove.

The coach gets in front of the ball so that he deflects it into the home team's dugout. Under the rules a thrown ball that goes into the dugout entitles everybody to advance two bases.

The umpire thought the coach intentionally interfered with the thrown ball, purposely getting in the way of it, so that it might be deflected, throwing off the players who were backing up, as well as the fielder making the play.

THE INTERPRETATION

Since the umpire thought the coach intentionally interfered with the throw, the runners, under the rules, were compelled to stop at the base last touched by them.

Instead of permitting the runner on first to go to third and the batter to second, since the overthrow went into the dugout, which ordinarily entitles all runners to advance two bases, the runner on first should be held at second and the batter at first.

The coach, for his offense, is penalized by being removed from the playing field.

Kinks o' the Links

Where did Bobby Jones finish in the national open last year and what was his score?

Jones finished in a tie for second place last year at Skokie with a score of 289. The veteran pro, John Black, shared the position with the youthful amateur. "Saracen" won with a score of 288, so that Jones and Black were just a stroke removed from the title in 1922.

Smith's caddy, on all the greens in a match with Jones, indicated the line of Smith's putts with a club and held the club in position while Smith putted. The club held by Smith's caddy did not touch the ground but unquestionably was of great aid to Smith in his putting. Was Smith within his rights in having his caddy indicate the line of putt?

Smith was in error and should suffer a two-stroke penalty for such violation. It is merely permissible to point out the direction for putting before the stroke is made. This dispute point is covered by section 1 of rule 29.

A is playing B and giving him one stroke a hole. They both score a five on a certain hole in which A had the honor. Since each scored a five does A retain the honor at the next tee?

Although each made a five on the hole, B won the hole since A was giving him a one-stroke handicap.

Mays, Hero of '21 Series, About to Leave Big Show

By NEA Service

New York, Aug. 4.—Carl Mays, pitching hero of the 1921 world series, is almost at the end of his career as a big leaguer.

A hero two years ago and a bench warmer today, lucky to start a game!

That sums up the story of Carl Mays.

Mays' fate simply proves that baseball is a mighty fickle playmate. Last year the Yankees asked for waivers on Mays. It was intended to send him to the Pacific Coast League in a deal for Pitcher Jake Mair. All the major league clubs waived except the Cincinnati Reds.

Failure of the Reds to waive, alone prevented Mays from being shunted to the minors last winter. That is almost certain to be his fate before the opening of next season.

This year finishes Mays' three-year contract calling for $15,000 a year. Right now Carl is getting his money for acting as bench warmer and occasional relief pitcher.

During the recent series with Cleveland Manager Huggins, because of injuries to several members of his pitching staff, was forced to start Mays. That game just about sounded the finish of his career as a big league star.

Cleveland won, 13 to 0, pounding Mays for 20 hits, many of them for extra bases.

Fohl Likely to Move Over Boston Way in Spring

By NEA Service

Boston, Aug. 4.—Opening of the 1924 season is almost sure to find Lee Fohl, now manager of the St. Louis Browns, at the head of his third major league club.

He is regarded now as the certain successor of Frank Chance, Red Sox pilot. Chance was signed only on a one-year contract when President Frazee brought him back from retirement.

Fohl started his major league career as manager of the Cleveland club. He met with excellent success considering the material he had to work with. This speaker, brilliant outfielder, succeeded him.

From Cleveland, Lee went to St. Louis. Last year he came within a single game of winning the American League pennant, with a team that was not without its weak spots.

Bobby Quinn, new president of the Red Sox, who took Fohl to St. Louis, will bring him to Boston, say the wise boys.

And George Sisler probably will replace Fohl at the Browns' helm.

Fohl lacks fire and is seldom in the spotlight, but he's a plodder who never stops trying until he has his club working its very best.

Under him, if Fohl gets the appointment, Boston ought to see better things in baseball.

Looks Like "Battle of the Ages" When Dempsey and "Wild Bull" Meet

BY BOB DORMAN.

NEA Service Writer.

New York, Aug. 4.—When an irresistible force meets an irresistible force, what is going to happen?

That is the interesting problem that probably will be settled soon, when Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, meets Luis Firpo, who, in the short space of one year, has fought himself into the front rank of the contenders for Jack's title.

A rushing attack that crushes everything in its way; a terrific punching ability that batters down everything that opposes it; a natural fighting instinct that takes the place of gymnasium taught skill; a joy in combat and a dogged determination that has but one object, the bringing down of the luckless morose tossed into the same ring with them—these are the outstanding characteristics of the two fighters whom fate has seen fit to make contemporaries.

Dempsey More Skillful.

Dempsey has the more skill. In his own awkward way he is the better boxer of the two. He is also a shade faster in the ring.

His more extensive experience in the ring, the confidence that goes with the knowledge that he is the world's champion, all combine to give him an advantage that would be hard for the "Bull of the Pampas" to overcome.

That of course entitles B to the honor on the next tee.

Is there a penalty if a player's ball strikes a flag stick which has been permitted to remain in the hole?

There is no penalty if a player's ball strikes the flag stick while it is in the hole, regardless of the distance the ball is played from.

Want To Hear A Hard Luck Story?

Listen To Pete Donahue's Tale of Woe As College Pitcher

BY BILLY EVANS.

Pete Donahue of the Cincinnati Reds stand out as one of the most unusual players to ever break into the major leagues.

Donahue came direct to the big show from a Texas college team and made good right off the reel. His case is a decided exception to the rule.

This spring at Orlando, Fla., while watching the Reds in training I had a good chance to give Donahue the once over. One day, while he was pitching to the batters I remarked to Manager Moran who was talking to me:

"Pat, that fellow Donahue reminds me of Mathewson in so many ways. He has that free motion of Mathewson's and works without the slightest effort."

Made Good From Start.

He's a wonderful pitcher and just as fine a boy," answered the Cincinnati manager. "Donahue is come, were it not for his peculiar mentality.

Luis Angel-Firpo feels that he is destined to become the world's heavyweight champion. That through the possession of the title he is to become a rich man. That was the vision that came to him as he climbed the Andes in South America as he set forth to his first fight.

That feeling has never left him throughout his career in the ring. It is the secret of the quiet business-like way he fights in the ring. It is the secret of the never-changing expression that carves his face into a granite mask, a mask unaffected by pain or joy, success or failure.

Real Pugilistic Classic.

It's uncanny, that expression. The crashing impact of the mighty Willard's ponderous fist brought no change.

The sight of the fallen giant, brought to his knees by the power of Firpo's own driving fist, left that expression unchanged!

It is the same brooding look that Napoleon, "The Man of Destiny," wore.

To Firpo, Dempsey is nothing more than the last obstacle in the way of the fulfillment of that vision of the heights that he had when he climbed the Andes a few short years ago.

If the Dempsey-Carpenter fight was "the battle of a century," the Dempsey-Firpo fight should be "the battle of the ages."

one of the greatest pitchers I have ever seen and the strange part of it, he was a finished big leaguer when he joined my club.

"When a pitcher comes to you direct from some college, no matter how much natural ability he may have, you figure he will need at least a year's experience to polish him up. He must learn to watch the runners. Then he must change his style to suit various situations. He must learn his batters, also a score of other things."

"Donahue seemed to know all those things when he joined the Reds. He had the ability and poise of a big leaguer. He knew how from the very start."

There you have a picture of Pete Donahue as a big leaguer, as painted by his manager. He is one of the pitching stars of the major leagues.

Good Old College Days.

What about his college days as a pitcher? Recently I had a chat with a Texan who was familiar with Donahue as a collegian and he related many unusual and amazing things about the Cincinnati star.

Would you believe it possible for a college pitcher to work eight no-hit games during his career and lose seven of them?

No! Well that is just what happened to Pete Donahue as a collegian. Seems as though that would have been enough to have made Donahue quit the game in disgust instead of inspiring him to win fame as a big leaguer.

Donahue's college record in baseball is without a parallel. Losses Seven No-Hit Games.

Pitching for the Texas Christian University of Fort Worth, Tex., he

1924 MODELS OF BUICK ARE INTRODUCED

Advances in Power, Control and Economy are Reported in New Line of Cars

FOUR-WHEEL BRAKES

Introduced to the public today, the 1924 Buick cars offer renewed proof of the unreliability of rumor. For months gossip of what Buick would do on August 1st has been prevalent and often solemnly asserted by the wisecracks as "on good authority." Yet so little of it proves true, and so many complete surprises characterize the new cars, that Buick is to be congratulated on keeping its secret so well.

There is no question that these Buick cars will be hailed as a substantial advance in automotive engineering, but it will be noted at the same time that the new features are development rather than innovations, evolutionary rather than revolutionary and consistent throughout with those Buick fundamental principles that have endured through twenty years of Buick manufacture.

With fifty percent more power claimed for its famous valve-in-head six cylinder engine, its successful external brakes extended to four wheels in both Sixes and Fours, a specially designed carburetor that is heralded as a wonder, and literally dozens of other developments, major and minor, Buick proves that its engineering staff has been very much "on the job."

The thousands who are certain to see these cars in the leading centers this week—and very soon in the show rooms of all Buick dealers—will first observe a change in body lines, undoubtedly influenced to a degree by recent refinements in foreign design. Thus a more modern appearance, even than the 1923 Buick, has been accomplished by a departure in radiator and hood contour on both open and closed bodies. This applies to both the six and four cylinder models, of which there are fourteen body styles.

Exterior features noted at first glance are the new head lamps, nickel radiators on the sixes, water tight hood hinges, open hood support, newly designed crown fenders, a more effective weather-proof windshield strip, operating instruments conforming in design to the headlamps, flush ventilator, new dust apron and a heavier and better looking gasoline tank.

It will next be noted that a two to four inch longer wheel base on the six cylinder chassis has created more room in both the front and rear compartments, thus affording greater comfort to both driver and passenger and, coupled with an improved spring suspension, easier riding qualities also. The finish is exceptionally fine, even for Buick, and the appointments unusually complete.

But, despite the notable advances in Buick appearance and roominess, it is the chassis that reflects most the protracted and intelligent effort that the Buick organization has applied in developing its car to this, the highest attainment of its history.

The six cylinder valve-in-head engine, which has probably brought more enduring fame to Buick than any other unit of its construction, has been so re-designed that it actually yields 50 percent more power and a speed of 60 to 70 miles an hour. It has forced feed lubrication, removable heads, larger valves, heavier crank and cam shafts, greater piston displacement and a new Marvel carburetor that includes a simple dash adjustment for economy, regardless of weather or kind of gasoline employed.

The extension to all four wheels of the highly successful Buick external brakes is a feature that, it is announced, has been in process of development for a period of years and recently subjected to more than 150,000 miles of hard and varied road tests. These brakes enable the car to be brought to a standstill much more quickly and smoothly thus affording an added factor of safety inestimable in its advantages. The brakes are operated by a lever mechanism on the foot pedal and the mechanism is both simple and ingenious. The factory organization gives its complete approval to this feature as perfected and in no sense experimental.

Another outstanding factor is the improved lubrication of the engine. There are new cup-top push rods and the rocker arms, valve stems and springs, connecting rod bearings are all automatically lubricated.

The foregoing are merely "the high spots" in the 1924 Buick, the minor improvements and refinements of the line being, in the aggregate, scarcely less interesting and epochal. And through it all basic Buick ideas of construction have been rigidly adhered to, amplified marvelously, but in no instance discarded.

Of the fourteen body models of the line, ten are mounted on the six cylinder chassis and four on the four cylinder chassis.

Of the six-cylinder body models there are two interesting departures from the 1923 line, a five-passenger Sedan to be known as the "Double Service," and a five-passenger Brougham. The former is painted in durable black and the interior is lined and upholstered in easily renovated material. The result is a car that can be subjected to the roughest usages of business and at the same time quickly adaptable to social purposes.

The five-passenger Brougham, painted in a brilliant maroon, is a very smart model of the so-called Sport type. It has all the refinements, inside and out, that are associated with cars of this character, besides many features distinctly its own.

OPEN DRIVE TO SELL TICKETS TO GLEE CLUB CONCERT AS BAND BENEFIT MONDAY, AUGUST 7

Members of the North-Western Glee Club, North-Western College, Naperville, Illinois.

The drive to sell tickets for the Men's Glee Club concert Tuesday evening at the Auditorium opens Monday when teams of business men will solicit the business districts.

The members of the Juvenile band have been given tickets to sell. Every member who sells ten tickets will be given free entrance to the concert. The fathers and mothers and brothers and sisters can help the boys and girls along by buying their tickets from band members who are anxious to hear the concert.

Those who have already signified their intention of aiding in the drive include: J. A. Kitchen, A. Boutros, Otis Dunham, Burlea Ward, B. M. Dunn, and A. M. Landgren.

The Men's Glee Club of North-Western College, Naperville, Ill., which appears in a concert at the Bismarck Auditorium on Tuesday evening, August 7th, 1923 at eight o'clock is one of the unique musical organizations of the United States.

The five-passenger Sedan, finished in lustrous black, are distinguished by ample room. The seven-passenger touring and seven-passenger Sedan are finished in a beautiful soft shade of blue. The sport roadster and sport touring are both maroon color.

Of the four cylinder line, the five-passenger touring and the two-passenger Roadster are finished in black, the four-passenger Coupe in maroon, the five-passenger Sedan in blue.

BUY COAL NOW PLEA IS MADE

Governor Adds Word to Urge
People to Avoid Shortage

An appeal to North Dakotans to "buy coal now" will be made by Governor R. A. Nestos through the state immigration department. Posters will be sent throughout the state, the immigration department acting under the interest of the lignite industry of the state.

The Governor will point out that failure of coal operators and miners to adjust their differences makes possible a repetition of last year's coal shortage.

"Help North Dakota by boosting North Dakota coal. It kept us warm and comfortable last winter during the coal strike when thousands of the East were suffering," the Governor's appeal will say.

FIRPO WINS ON DECISION

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 4.—Lewis Angel Firpo, giant of Argentina, defeated Homer Smith of Kalamazoo, Mich., in a 10-round bout here last night, gaining the referee's decision. It was the first time in the South American's career that he was forced to win by the decision route. All his battles previously had been comparatively easy victories by knockout.

AMERICANS TO BE PROTECTED

Hong Kong, China, Aug. 4.—(By the Associated Press)—Advises from Amoy announced that the American gunboat Ashville arrived there yesterday to protect American residents during the fighting which is continuing between forces of Sun Yat-Sen, the South China leader and the troops from the north. It is reported that northern Chinese gunboats captured a steam launch flying the Japanese flag. The launch is said to have had money aboard for the payment of southern China troops.

No other college Glee Club, so far as it is known, makes as extended and long a tour as this concert company. Throughout the eleven weeks of vacation this summer the North-Western Glee Club is singing practically every night, keeping constantly on the move so that by the end of the season fifteen western states will have been touched. Three weeks will be spent in the Pacific Coast States.

Twelve young men from a wide range of states compose the Club accompanied by the Director of the North-Western College School of Music, Professor C. Claude Pinney.

A high class concert program of ensemble, solo, instrumental and quartette numbers is given by the Club with plenty of college humor and glee interspersed to make the program typical of a college glee club.

Young and old, the critical and the less musically inclined, can all enjoy the program in its varied and interesting nature. This is the twenty-sixth annual tour made by a Glee Club sent out by North-Western College. In the summer of last year six thousand miles of territory in fourteen eastern states and the province of Ontario, Canada were covered by the Club. Such places as Detroit, Boston, New York City, Philadelphia, Washington and Cleveland were included in last year's itinerary.

The territory covered in this season's trip will approximate ten thousand miles with concerts scheduled in all the principal metropolitan centers of the West.

To have the North-Western College Glee Club schedule a concert here as one of the eighty-five stopping points for concerts this season, is a real favor to us. The Club has a nationwide reputation so no one will want to miss the opportunity to hear the Club and enjoy a profitable evening of entertainment.

HAND GRENADE IS THROWN AT FRENCH TROOPS

Two of Detachment Are Injured in Duesseldorf
By Bomb

Duesseldorf, Aug. 4.—(By the Associated Press)—A hand grenade was thrown into midst of a detachment of French troops led by a squad of trumpeters this afternoon as it was passing the Cornelius Platz, one of the busiest corners, wounded two soldiers and a German woman and child who were watching the parade.

The soldiers immediately broke ranks and arrested a German whom they said was on the spot from which the grenade was thrown. The soldiers said they found a number of grenade detonators in his pocket.

I. W. W. GETS JAIL SENTENCE

Man Arrested at Jamestown
May Be Deported

Jamestown, N.D., Aug. 4.—William Murphy, an I. W. W. organizer, was charged in Jamestown today on a charge of vagrancy. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $25 and costs. He admitted he was not a citizen, having come from Dublin and not taken out naturalization papers. He also admitted that he was arrested in Kansas and served a term in the Kansas penitentiary for violation of the criminal syndicalism law. He may be deported, it being stated in court by attorneys that a representative of the department of justice had been in the city investigating the status of I. W. W. organizers, with a view of deporting aliens who violate the laws of this country.

WOULD PRESENT BOUT

Jefferson City, Aug. 4.—Governor Hyde of Missouri sent today a message to Phil Brockman, president of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners, ordering him to stop the Firpo-Coller 10-round bout scheduled to be held in St. Louis Monday night. The Governor declared that the Missouri anti-prize fight and boxing law would be vigorously enforced.

30 THOUSAND MEN GO TO C. M. T. CAMPS

Health of Mind and Body
For Youths Is Purpose of Camps

Chicago, Aug. 4.—In the last days of July some 30,000 young men left their homes to spend a month in one or another of the 25 Citizens' Military Camps, which the Government has organized for this summer, according to the announcement made by the Military Training Camps Association here recently.

Health in mind, body and character is the primary aim of the Citizens' Camps to which young men between 17 and 24 are admitted for a month of training at government expense, and these camps are located at carefully selected sites in various parts of the country, so that no one need travel more than two or three hundred miles from his own home.

In making the announcement, George T. James, the executive secretary of the Association, says:

"The camps are conducted by the most competent officers of the Regular Army, the National Guard and the Organized Reserves, and no pains are spared to make the month of training an enjoyment and a profit to all who attend. Applicants are accepted only after careful physical examination and with the endorsement of good character from reliable citizens, and in every detail the camps live up to the highest standards of American home life.

"All expenses, including transportation, are paid by the government, but in return it asks that every man go to camp with an earnest desire to return a better citizen. No finer education ideal can be found in all history since the days of ancient Greece than underlies the Citizens' Camps of 1922. The daily program is devised to interest and strengthen young men in every possible way. The morning hours are given to a carefully graduated course of military training from ordinary infantry drill through a succession of four years in the specialized work of other branches of the service, the cavalry, engineers, field and coast artillery, signal corps and air service. The afternoons are devoted to all forms of physical training and athletics, including baseball, handball, volley ball, tennis, swimming, boxing, wrestling and track work, all under expert direction and conducted with a view to physical health and good sportsmanship. Ample entertainment is arranged for the evening hours.

The Right Oil for Fords

Havoline Oil is the oldest high-grade branded motor oil on the market. For twenty years—since the automobile industry was in its infancy—Havoline chemists and engineers have been perfecting various types of oils to suit each particular motor. One of their most notable achievements has been the production of Havoline F.

This remarkable oil is particularly fitted to the unique lubrication problems of the Ford engine. It cuts the hard, glazed surfaces of your old transmission bands so that they take hold firmly without grabbing or chattering.

Fill your crank case with Havoline F and in less than a half mile you'll be able to start or stop as smooth as silk.

Look for the red and blue Havoline sign. Wherever you see it you can get Havoline F.
